KHS Office Damaged, Concert Hall Evacuated

Police Arrest Four in Fire Bombings

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON

A 16-year-old Kingston High School student and three juveniles, ranging in age from 13 to 15 have been arrested by city detectives charged with first degree arson and for falsely reporting incidents in connection with the firebombings of Kingston High School Monday night.

Detective Lieutenant Charles McCullough told The Freeman that Albert Daniel LaTorre, 16, of Box 325, New Salem, was arrested shortly after 11:30 this morning in the company of five other youths in a parked car in Kingston. Three were held for family court action. The other two youths were released. None was identified because of their age.

LaTorre is also charged with making seven false telephone calls to the high school telling officials that bombs were planted in the building. There were three calls on Monday and four calls this morning beginning at 8:33 a.m. and ending at 11 a.m. Detectives said that LaTorre will be arraigned in city court Wednesday.

A Molotov cocktail was hurled through the rear window of the central office of the high school last night starting a fire that was quickly extinguished by an alert teacher and custodians. A second fire bomb that did not ignite had been thrown through a window below the main office and a third "amateurishly" made bomb was found by firemen outside the school near the charred remains of a book of matches, authorities disclosed.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig was on the scene last night. He had been meeting with members of the Common Council in his offices at City Hall across the street from the high school. He called an emergency meeting this morning with Police Chief Francis J. Fagan and Fire Chief James M. Brett to discuss means of averting similiar incidents. "I am shocked," the mayor said.

He called for vigorous prosecution of persons responsible for the bombings. "We have to protect not only the schools of the city but all buildings and all persons and their properties," Koenig commented.

While the mayor was talking with a Freeman reporter, he was informed another hoax bomb telephone call had been reported at the high school this morning.

Police today confirmed a report that two Molotov cocktails that failed to ignite were found Sunday at about 7:15 p.m. near the windows of the high school music hall.

The incident shortly after 9 p.m. Monday climaxed a day of anxiety among school officials who had reported three hoax telephone calls had been received at BOCES' office on reporting bombs and necessitating the evacuation of the building after each call.

A fourth hoax call had been received at BOCES' office on Grand Street. Each time police detectives and firemen made thorough searches but found nothing of an explosive nature.

Detective Lieutenant Charles McCullough said several persons had been brought to police headquarters for questioning about last night's incident, which police officials said was the most serious to occur in the city.

A custodian at the high school reportedly told investigators that he had seen four youths in the parking lot at the school and later he saw some young men running away into the darkness seconds before the school gong sounded and the blaze was discovered.

One of the fire bombs involved in last night's incident heavily damaged the administration office in the first floor of the school, according to William A. Scafidi, assistant principal. The bomb, made up of a bottle and flammable fluid with a rag wick, crashed through an upper pane of glass of the window as fire flashed from the object.

The bottle hit a wall and then crashed to the floor of the office erupting in damaging flames that started to spread through part of the area.

Scafidi said desks and cabinets and other furniture were damaged. One desk was ruined he said, and a communication cable was partly burned.

Bruce Finch, a faculty member, who was instructing a night school class at the time rushed through corridors and saw the fire. He and custodians took a fire hose from a nearby wall and pressed it into service to quell the flames.

Meanwhile, in the auditorium of the school adjacent to the central administration office, between 600 and 700 persons were attending the season's opening concert of the Ulster County Council Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society.

A spokesman said the guest artist, Rudolf Firkunsky, was playing the first movement of Schumann's Piano Concerto when the fire gong in the school sounded a warning to evacuate the building. The spokesman said "at first the audience and the orchestra thought the bells were chimes and they remained quiet. Then the bell sounded again. Half of the orchestra stopped playing. The others continued until it became known that there was a fire in the building."

The orchestra spokesman said two persons looked out a window and "saw a flaming object fly upwards" and then the sound of breaking glass could be heard.

The audience moved from the auditorium and left the building most of them through the front door not far from the central office where the fire erupted. The orchestra left through side doors. There was no commotion and no one was injured.

Bombs Rock Synagogues

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Bomb blasts rocked two Jewish synagogues early today, just 15 days after similar explosions damaged two store-front churches, several public buildings and a private home here.

Rochester Police Commissioner John Masterella said the incidents appeared to be part of a "coordinated attack," but he added that no motives had been established nor suspects taken into custody.

No persons were reported injured as a result of the blasts. The wife of a caretaker at one of the temples fainted shortly after the explosions and was released after treatment at a nearby hospital.

Damage to both the Temple Beth Sholom and the Light of Israel Sephardic Center was confined to small areas. Rabbi Solomon Cohen of the Sephardic Center said he was "grateful the Torah was housed at the opposite end of the building."

He said the repairs might cost $40,000 to $50,000.

At the Temple Beth Sholam, the damage was limited to an 8-year old rear section some distance from the sanctuary.

Windows in other buildings near the two temples were shattered by the concussion from the blasts.

"My first thought was that a boiler had blown up," said Wallace Gilbert, the caretaker of the Temple Beth Sholom. He and his wife were in their apartment at the far end of the building when the blast occurred.

Gilbert said he did not notice the damage to the building when he first entered the temple. Then, his wife said, they heard people outside shouting that a bomb had gone off.

Rabbi Cohen said most of the damage to the Sephardic Center was sustained in one corner where a hole was blown through the wall.

Residents in the area of the Center told police they heard screeching tires as an automobile apparently sped away from the scene shortly after the explosion.

'The whole house shook," said Mrs. Agnes Anderson, whose home is a few doors from the center. "I was just going to bed when I heard the noise."

"It was a bomb," she said with certainty, 'but there was no smell."

Police identified the explosive used in the last series of bombings here as dynamite by the strong acrid odor that hung over the blasted areas long after the debris settled.

That was Oct. 12 when the main post office and federal office building was struck as were a county office building, two churches and a private residence.

Monroe County Dist. Atty. Jack B. Lazarus said today, "We all hoped the bombings had stopped, but now we must make every effort to stop this maniac terrorism."

Police said that, as in the case of the Oct. 12 attacks, no warnings were given and no notes of explanation were found in the area.

Today's bombings occurred at parts of town about six miles apart. The Sephardic Center is on the northeast side of the city while the Temple Beth Sholom is to the southeast of the central city.

The Light of Israel explosion was apparently caused by a dynamite charge thrown through a large basement window, police said. The window was blown out in the one and a half story modern brick building and the foundation was damaged.

The pattern in the explosions was similar to a series of five which hit the downtown area Oct. 12 in a 20 minute period. The downtown federal building was damaged along with the Monroe County courthouse, two predominantly black storefront churches and the home of union official Dick Clark.

Bullet-Riddled Body Found On Thruway Near Paltz

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN and BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEW PALTZ

The bullet-riddled body of a man about 25 years old was discovered this morning in a 10-foot ditch off the northbound lane of the State Thruway about three miles north of the New Paltz interchange.

Coroner Henry S. Hartley said the man appeared to be between 20 and 30 years old, husky built, and white. He was lying face up in an open ditch about 10 feet down from the driving lane. The coroner said the body appeared to have been at the site for about four or five hours before it was discovered by a passing truck driver who reported the grim finding about 8:20 a. m.

Hartley said there was no identification on the body, no wallet, no wristwatch or other valuables. He would not reveal whether the labels were ripped from the clothing the victim wore. Apparently no attempt was made to conceal the body as Hartley said it was in full view from the superhighway.

There was an unofficial report that the body had at least four bullet holes.

Hartley said the body was fully dressed so it could not be immediately determined if there were any scars or other identifying marks. He said there appeared to be no bruises on the face of the gun victim.

Senior BCI Investigator Edward Shannon, who headed the investigation at the scene said the man was about five feet, seven, heavy built and in his 20's. He said the bullet holes were in the torso of the victim. A search of the area revealed a .45 caliber empty casing. Troopers and BCI investigators continued to search the area for the murder weapon or any other clues which might lead to the identification of the body. Investigators did not reveal if any tire marks were found in the dirt along the superhighway.

An earlier report noted that an abandoned car was discovered several miles from the scene. However, a state police check revealed that there was no apparent connection between the car and shooting victim.

Senior Investigator Shannon said they were waiting for the arrival of the identification officer and pathologist before removing the clothing. He said he could not reveal at this time the type of clothing the man wore.

The body was brought to the morgue at Kingston Hospital about 9:30 a.m., according to Coroner Hartley. He said no further information would be available until the pathologist arrived and removed the clothes to determine how many bullet holes were in the torso.

The discovery of one empty shell at the scene might indicate that the shooting occurred at the scene, it was pointed out. However, state police continued the search for additional casings.

Senior Investigator Shannon said that from the information they were able to gather at the scene it could not be determined if the man was from this area.

The area where the body was discovered was in a clearing about 10 feet downgrade from the northbound lane of the Thruway. The surrounding area is wooded.

Fire ID Stickers Are Now Available

Firemen John Reinhardt (L) and Harry Hornbeck place ID sticker on the front door of a local home housing an invalid who might require help in leaving the residence in the event of a fire emergency. A companion sticker is placed on the bedroom window of the disabled person to direct firemen arriving at scene the location of any invalid in the house. The Kingston Uniformed Fire Fighters Association Local 461 is distributing the stickers. They may be obtained by calling Hornbeck or Reinhardt at the central station firehouse. Stickers will be delivered free of charge as a public service by th UFFA. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

DA Office, 'Funny Money' Discussed by Nirenberg

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Alex J. Nirenberg, Democratic candidate for district attorney, charged today that the Ulster County District Attorney's attempt to refute Nirenberg's statements on the DA's conviction record has failed, "and in fact, proved everything I've been saying."

Nirenberg spoke at a press conference today at Democratic headquarters on Broadway, dealing with two subjects, the DA's conviction record and to so-called "funny money" controversy.

District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca held a press conference yesterday on both subjects, stating on the former that Nirenberg's statements on his office's conviction rate were "false and statistically misleading." Nirenberg has charged repeatedly that the district attorney's office has convicted only five persons as charged in 108 drug cases. Toracca claimed yesterday that out of the 108 cases there were 51 convictions, 30 youthful offenders and that 21 cases were still pending.

Nirenberg accuses Toracca of a deliberate "error of ommission." "He leaves out two key words," Nirenberg asserted today. "Those words are "as charged." I say that the Ulster County District Attorney's office has convicted only five persons out of 108 as charged in narcotics cases." Torraca's list proves everything I've been saying."

The "funny money" controversy centers around Nirenberg's use of a campaign handout which features a copy of a dollar bill as one quarter and a picture and campaign message from Nirenberg on the rest of it .

Torraca said yesterday that the U. S. Secret Service has a sample of the advertisement and has advised the district attorney's office that it is illegal to use such an ad with a copy of U. S. currency.

"Cases such as this arise out of ignorance," Torraca said. "Without criminal intent."

Today, Nirenberg charged that the DA's office wanted to have him arrested for passing the campaign literature and had contacted the Secret Service on the matter.

"The so-called investigation by the Secret Service never took place and is not taking place," Nirenberg said. "What did happen is that my opponent (First Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, the Republican - Conservative candidate) complained to the Secret Service and wanted to have me arrested. The Secret Service would have no part of it. But since a complaint was made they (the Secret Service) said that no more should be printed and that any plates and/or negatives would have to be picked up from the printers."

"Let's put this whole issue in the proper prospective," Nirenberg said. "The DA's office should be prosecuting drug pushers instead of something everyone is enjoying and asking for."

Nirenberg said that the campaign literature was printed in Ellenville and that type of ad (with the dollar bill) had been used by numerous businesses in Ulster County.

Republicans in State

Fellow GOPers Rally to Goodell

NEW YORK (AP) — The Goodell election bandwagon, a low-powered, poorly financed vehicle almost derailed by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, is getting a big push along the track from seven fellow Republican senators.

The seven showed up in New York Monday and fanned out around the state to work for Sen. Charles E. Goodell. Their unanimous praise of the liberal senator contrasted with the abuse hurled at him by the Vice President.

The seven and 11 other Republican senators signed a statement lauding Goodell as "a man of conscience, courage and conviction." Agnew has denounced him as a "radical liberal" who has "read himself out of the party."

The Goodell supporters were Sens. Jacob K. Javits of New York, Charles H. Percy of Illinois, Marlow Cook of Kentucky, Caleb Boggs of Delaware, William Saxbe of Ohio, Clifford Case of New Jersey and Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

"Charlie and I have disagreed many times in the Senate and when he returns we will again, ' said Percy on his arrival at LaGuardia Airport..

"The "Republican party is big enough . . . when a party can hold a Charles Goodell and a Strom Thurmond, it's a big tent."

Saxbe said he could not understand President Nixon's position, adding: "Agnew is something else. He has chosen to go his own way in the support of individual candidates instead of going with the national party."

Added Case: "Nixon knows how we feel.. I think the Vice President is off on a thing of his own. It's unfortunate, but not important."

The appearance of the seven senators followed a dramatic television appearance Sunday night by Goodell, who pre-empted "Lassie" on WCBS-TV at a reported cost of $10,000 to deny rumors he would quit the race and throw his support to Democratic contender Richard Ottinger.

The rumors blossomed after a Daily News poll showed Conservative candidate James L. Buckley leading the three-way Senate race, followed by Ottinger and—far behind—Goodell.

Buckley, noting earlier complaints about Agnew's interference in the New York senatorial contest, grinned at the invasion by the seven senators and gibed: "I thought Sen. Goodell didn't approve of other people coming in."

Ottinger's reaction: "All Mr. Goodell can do is split the moderate vote and fall into the Agnew trap" of letting Buckley win. If he were in Goodell's position, he would drop out, Ottinger said.

None of the seven senators faces an election this year. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who does, also came to the support of Goodell Monday.

"Sen. Goodell represents the best in independence and courage, of intelligence and compassion," declared the governor, who appointed him to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Barthel, Lenefsky Endorsed By Woodstock Taxpayer Unit

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association (WTTA) announced today it was endorsing George M. Barthel, Democratic-Liberal State Assembly candidate for the 99th Assembly District seat now held by H. Clark Bell, Republican - Conservative, and David Lenefsky, Democratic candidate for the State Senate seat now held by Jay P. Rolison Jr., Republican incumbent.

WTTA, a nonpolitical, nonpartisan organization, believes that Barthel, who is county legislator for Town of Wawarsing, "has the ability, integrity, courage and will to fight and vote for assumption by the state of the entire cost of the public school system as soon as possible; elimination of the taxing power of local schools boards, and retention by such boards of the same measure, if not more, of the control of the quality and administration of education, which they now have, and pending the state's takeover of the complete cost, substantially increase state aid to local school districts."

"Based on Assemblyman Bell's performance thus far," Walter H. Schulman, president, said, "WTTA has no confidence that he will wage a vigorous fight for school relief for homeowners through a basic change in the state tax system so as to remove completely and permanently the district school tax on non-income producing homes.

Schulman continued, "In 1967, Bell accepted the principle that the state pay the cost of the public schools and that no local school district or political subdivision of the state be required to pay any part of the cost.

"At the 1968 annual meeting of WTTA, Bell pledged himself to work for school tax relief of the homeowner. WTTA endorsed him as the only candidate for the Ulster County Assembly seat, who could be relied on to fight for laws to relieve homeowners from the heavy direct school tax without loss of local control of the public schools.

"Bell's failure to act aggressively for taxpayer relief compels the conclusion that he will night fight for it. Assemblyman Bell's inertia in school tax relief since he took office is a shocking disappointment," Schulman added.

Schulman said, "WTTA endorses Lenefsky for the Dutchess-Ulster seat in the State Senate, as a man who has demonstrated that he has a realistic grasp of the imperative need to relieve homeowners from the increasingly heavy direct school tax.

"The incumbent apparently has no will at all to work for takeover by the state of the entire cost of the public schools. As far at WTTA is aware, Rolison has never unequivocally advocated that the state assume the entire cost of public education," Schulman said.

"Lenefsky has made a straightforward, emphatically clear statement of his position that the state shall assume the entire cost of public education.

"WTTA believes that Lenefsky and Barthel are the men to place in the State Legislature to vote for the remedial legislation that in all probability will be introduced in the 1971 session," Schulman concluded.

Lenefsky Raps the Tab At Minnewaska Park

WEST SHOKAN

"This has to represent double taxation," says State Senator candidate David Lenefsky, voicing disapproval today over what he charged was "an astronomical fee" to gain admission to Lake Minnewaska State Park.

Noting that the state purchased 6,725 acres of the Lake Minnewaska mountain resort here in Ulster County this year at $1.5 million for development as the Minnewaska State Park, Lenefsky said he opposes the $2.50 per car being charged currently to enter the park.

"After paying more than $1 million for this piece of land," says Lenefsky, "taxpayers are being forced to pay again—are actually being double taxed—to use the park."

Cut for Phillips

He also said that part of the $2.50 price for admitting automobiles "is going back" to Kenneth B. Phillips, owner of the Minnewaska resort from whom the state purchased the park acreage.

Phillips declined a state offer to buy more than 9,000 acres for $2.5 million; continues to operate his own hotels, golf course and ski slope on adjoining acreage.

"If this is double taxation for park users," says Lenefsky, "it is a windfall for Phillips. He's getting a very good deal out of our money."

State-owned lands at Minnewaska are presently under the authority of the Palisades Interstate Parks Commission, says Lenefsky, and spokesmen for the Commission are not divulging what percentage of the $2.50 per automobile being charged is going back to Phillips. "But," says the state senator candidate, "Phillips has an attendant stationed at the entrance who collects the admission fee."

Other Parks Much Lower

He maintains that to pay so much for the property originally, and to pay what is an "astronomical" entry fee compared to the 50 cents admission currently charged at other state parks in the area is, plain and simply, "double taxation."

In Lenefsky's opinion, the entire set-up is "wrong" since it involves property that should be open to the public and sportsmen such as hunters.

If elected, says candidate Lenefsky, he will make every effort to put an end to what he sees as an "unfair and unnecessary practice": lower the entry fee to the park's recreational areas.

New Voter Instruction in Saugerties

SAUGERTIES

New voters or those using voting machines for the first time in a general election will have the opportunity for instruction tonight from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Saugerties Town Hall.

Town Clerk Miss Marion Newkirk, who announced the instruction session, said the town's voting machine custodians will be in attendance to explain procedure for casting a ballot and how to avoid casting a blank.

This will probably be the only opportunity for new voters to receive this vital information before election day, Nov. 3.

Candidates Agree . . . Severe Drug Abuse Problem

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK

About the only thing that four candidates for state office and two for national office agreed on at the ACTION candidates' night Monday was that not enough is being done about the drug abuse problems.

GOP Assemblyman Emeel Betros said that the drug law committee is still investigating the problem; that he was opposed to the legalization of marijuana; and that education should be stressed.

His Democratic opponent Victor C. Waryas said that no laws were going to stop persons from using drugs unlawfully if they really wanted to, and that the state had an obligation to try to aid addicts.

State Senator Jay P. Rolison, (R-Dutchess-Ulster) advocated a crack down on the pusher, and put the burden of responsibility on the parents of the offending youths.

His Democratic challenger, David Lenefsky, said that with no real scientific evidence he couldn't give an opinion on marijuana, but that most of the pushers "are high school students themselves." He called the big dealers "suppliers," and located them largely in the cities.

On other issues, GOP Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. answered a question as to whether he favored the National Security Act of 1970 which in effect allows the federal administration to suspend civil rights and declare martial law.

He said that the situation in Canada today is a good example of the need for such power because it is not an "isolated outbreak" but a concerned effort to intimidate the government.

His conservative opponent Harry Hoffman of Saugerties pointed out that martial law at the state level has been a reality for a long time, and that the federal law "make sense."

A question was asked the candidates as to whether they felt they should follow their own beliefs in judging legislation or follow the general consensus of their constituents.

All noted that it is generally very difficult to ascertain an overwhelming feeling one way or the other by constituents, and that personal convictions must be employed.

This led to a discussion of communication with the voters, with Fish stating that well-conceived letters are the "most effective" way of reaching an elected official.

Lenefsky said that a serious problem is that we "haven't taken advantage of electronic technology" in such communications. And he said that some of the difficulty in communicating can be traced to the "Johnson credibility gap."

A question on controlling the birth rate elicited some very positive responses.

Hoffman claimed that tax exemptions in the present structure "encourage large families," and Fish said that he had "found some common ground" with Hoffman.

Waryas claimed to be one of nine children, came out for "family life," and said he was not in favor of governmental regulation, as did Rolison. Lenefsky said twice that you "cannot tax ignorance."

A questioner asked Hoffman how his beliefs that America has a role as a "super nation" and his support of the President in all things differed from those of Adolf Hitler.

Hoffman said that the United States "has not sought" the role of super nation, but it has been thrust upon us and added that the "balance of power" is the only stable situation.

Another questioner asked Hoffman what his definition of freedom was, since the United States aided the governments of Greece and South Vietnam which jail political prisoners.

Hoffman answered, Who you are working with is irrelevant," as long as they are against communism. Their internal affairs are "none of our business."

Fish commented that he didn't think the United States has the "finances or manpower" to be a world policeman.

On governmental regulation of pornography, Hoffman said that this was a state reponsibility. Fish said that mails are a federal responsibility, and that adults should have the right ro receive pornography or not, but children should be protected.

On the proposed statewide judicial budget, Lenefsky came out in favor of a uniform procedure, "especailly in criminal cases." Rolison said he suspected state financial control might "try to eliminate local justice courts," and Betros agreed with that.

Democratic candidate John Greaney intended to attend the discussion in his race for the 28th District post of congressman, but met with a slight automobile accident, according to Robert Desmond of the Red Hook Jaycees.

The Jaycees announced that their ACTION program has been accepted by the statewide Jaycee organization, with more than 200 chapters, as a state project.

Rocky's Campaign Costs . . . . A Cool $4.8 Million

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller's re-election campaign has cost $4.8 million so far, a report filed with the secretary of state disclosed Monday.

Reports also showed Conservative James L. Buckley so far has outspent millionaire Democrat Richard L. Ottinger in the U.S. Senate race with Republican Charles E. Goodell in third.

A large part of the Rockefeller campaign funds came from members of his wealthy family. Family contributions accounted for more than $4 million. Rockefeller himself reported spending $310,000 of his own.

State law requires the filing of election campaign spending reports at least 10 days before election. Another report is due after election.

The campaign of Ottinger has cost $725,934, the preliminary report showed. The amount was considerably less than the $1.8 million reported spent by Ottinger in winning the Democratic primary last June.

The bulk of Ottinger's campaign funds came from his mother, Mrs. Louise Ottinger. The Ottinger fortune was founded in plywood.

Buckley's campaign for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Goodell, has cost nearly $1.1 million. Nearly $90,000 in Buckley campaign financing came from 13 Washington, D.C. based committees.

Six committees have contributed $538,000 toward the Goodell campaign effort.

A report on spending in the Arthur J. Goldberg effort had not reached the secretary of state's office by closing time Monday. Goldberg is the Democrat Liberal candidate for governor.

Woodstock Independents: an 'Experiment in Absolutely Open Politics'

WOODSTOCK

Seemingly convinced that "power corrupts," members of the newly forming Woodstock Independent Party are bending over backwards in efforts to assure that no one involved in the new political undertaking goes on a "power trip."

During what organizers of the new party called an "experiment in absolutely open politics" Friday night, WIP members packed the Odd Fellows Hall in Bearsville to standing room only; made it evident they are opposed to the traditional organization framework of established party politics.

On hand to elect officers, they opted instead for a nine-man executive board. In so doing, they managed to keep their open caucus just that — open, undefined and non-structured.

The lengthy meeting, chaired by attorney Gerald Wapner, remained true to the idea that WIP should remain an organization aimed at being as open and all-embracing as possible. In bypassing such officers as committeemen for a nine-man board, members envisioned a system that would be representative of as many different points of view as possible among the nine who will serve.

Charged with dividing the necessary positions among themselves, the nine board members are expected to act as a steering committee to bring back proposals to the membership at large.

Most of the discussion at Friday night's meeting centered on keeping WIP's structure nonrigorous. But feeling ran high that the new party is taking shape rapidly; that young prospective 18-year-old voters should be encouraged to join and become active; and that the open caucus itself was a novel town meeting kind of organization.

In keeping with the open experiment, the caucus suspended with parliamentary procedures — such as Roberts Rules of Order — in the interest of bringing about a "free-flowing meeting, not bound by traditions. Obviously elated by the fact that its recent registration drive had added more than 500 new voters to Woodstock voting lists WIP members maintained their fledgling party is well on the way toward getting people involved in local political action. Convinced they can provide a grass roots groundswell for change and improvement in Woodstock town government, WIP will continue to work toward that aim. Deferring any possible nomination of officers pending further discussion of structure, Independents will probably move for nominations at the next meeting, Thursday, Nov. 12, at Joyous Lake Restaurant, Mill Hill Road, Woodstock.

In the meantime, the nine-man executive board, which selected folk singer-gallery owner Billy Faier and author-attorney Lawrence Weinberg as temporary co-chairmen from among its number, will also meet in the interval.

BELL ENDORSEMENT FOR KIERNAN — Ulster County Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (L) has endorsed the candidacy of Daniel E. Kiernan of Phoenicia for tax assessor in the Town of Shandaken. Kiernan, a Republican, was appointed to fill a vacancy for the position of tax assessor by the Shandaken Town Board. He is a 30-year resident of Phoenicia and a retired general building contractor.

Sickler Issues Challenge to Wiltsie

Richard Sickler, Democratic-Conservative candidate for Town of Esopus Councilman, has sent the following letter to Edward S. Wiltsie, his Republican opponent in the Nov. 3 election:

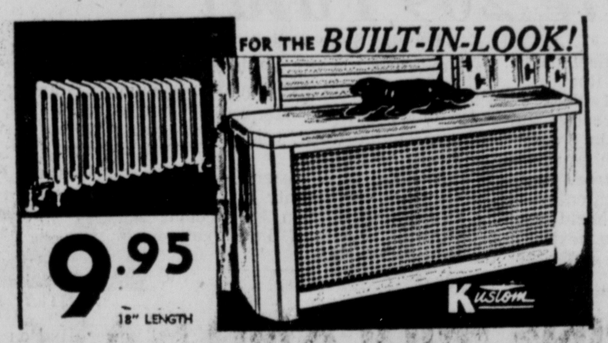

In keeping with the spirit of the Holloween season, I realize that many a frightened candidate sees ghosts and goblins, which lead him to hallucinations concerning various aspects of their campaign. Because of this realization I will not stoop to answering your news release of Oct. 21, 1970. I should only like to point out, in contradiction of the tone of your news release, that four months in public office does not a political genius make.

"During the course of this election campaign, I have endeavored to discuss the issues and reveal my plans for the Town of Esopus. Since I am presently not an officeholder I do not have a record to defend. On the other hand, you have been unwilling to discuss your plans for the Town, and have completely ignored your record in pjublic office. I challenge you to come forward and advise the public of the programs which you have sponsored for the betterment of the Town of Esopus since your appointment as Councilman.

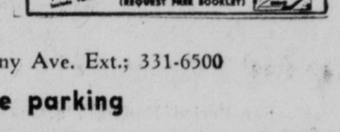

If you accept this challenge, don't wait until the day before the election to respond, in an attempt to prevent a rebuttal, because the public already knows the truth."

There's a Big Difference

Between . . .

"HEAVY OIL" and "Light Oil"

Which all home owners should know about!

Various news media report possible shortage of fuel oil this winter.

What has generally not been made clear is that there is a big difference between RESIDUAL (or, so-called, heavy industrial fuel oil used by electric utilities, industrial plants, apartments, etc.) and DISTILLATE (a highly refined oil — the kind you use in your home for heating.)

Some of our competitors would like you to believe there is a shortage of all kinds of oil, so that home owners will lose confidence in the traditional reliability of OIL HEAT.

The truth of the matter is that inventories of home heating oil at the beginning of the current heating season are 3% to 5% higher than the comparable period last year.

No shortage of home heating oil is in prospect. Supplies of home heating oil are ample to meet home owners' requirements and your local dealer is prepared, as usual, to provide you with the fuel necessary to insure your comfort this winter — clean, dependable, economical OIL HEAT.

Marbletown Faces a $3.65 Tax Boost

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
STONE RWIDGE

The Town of Marbletown presented a preliminary budget totaling $201,007.11 for 1971, an increase of $34,857.92 over the current budget figure which despite lower state aid revenues will reflect in a tax rate increase of about $3.65 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The preliminary budget was revealed by Supervisor Kenneth D. Smith at Monday night's public hearing in the town hall, attended by about 35 persons.

The total apropriations in the general fund $74,625 does not include a $1,000 increase in the allocation to the Stone Ridge Library agreed upon by the Town Board at the hearing. Last year's library allocation was $1,500. The Library Association asked for a $1,500 increase and the Town Board settled on $1,000 more.

Estimated revenues under the general fund of $35,914.80 and $9,162.75 under the highway fund leaving a total of $155,929.56 to be raised by taxation.

Supervisor Smith said the breakdown of the $3.65 rate increase shows a .538 hike in general fund and $3.111 increase in highway fund.

He noted that some minor changes and the library allocation will bring the total budget figures slightly higher. The Town Board will hold an executive meeting Friday for its final determintion and adoption of the budget.

Some salary increases attribute to the larger appropriation figure, Supervisor Smith said. The deputy town clerk's hourly rate was increased from $1.85 per hour to $2.50. The town clerk received a salary increase of $400 from $5,200 to $5,600 and the highway superintendent $500 from $7,000 to $7,500.

The chairman of the Board of Assessors received an increase of $125 from $1,650 to $1,775 and the other two assessors each received $100 more from $1,500 to $1,600. The supervisor's salary of $4,500 is the same and the councilmen's salaries of $700 remain the same. The supervisor also serves as welfare office at no salary.

The zoning inspector's salary was increased $400 from $1,200 to $1,600 and the dog warden was hiked from $100 to $500. This portion is vacant.

A new item in the 1970 budget services of a budget officer. The appropriation for town constables was increased from $500 to $1,000 and the sanitary landfill operation was increased from $7,500 to $10,000 to cover labor, supplies nad maintenance of equipment. Under youth recreation for the Marbletown Recreation Park, the increase was $1,500 from $4,050 to $5,550.

The total appropriation for the general fund is $74,625 as compared with the current appropriation of $66,320. The Highway Department appropriation for the current period, $99,829.19 has been increased in the preliminary budget to $126,382.11.

Smith said the general fund rate without the county charges is $7.35 and the highway rate $22.271 for a total town tax rate without county charges of $29.63. As soon as the county budget is completed and approved, county quota charges will be added to establish the town tax rate.

Supervisor Smith said the town taxpayers are "getting a great bargain for the services received from my observation of other town budgets."

Special Council Session on Thursday

KINGSTON

Mayor Francis R. Koenig has called the Common Council back into session Thursday night at 7:30 to vote on an architect for the proposed Rondout Neighborhood Center.

The mayor has recommended hiring of Augustus Schrowang as the architect. Schrowang has agreed to design the building at the minimum fee of nine per cent recommended by the American Institute of Architects.

Schrowang is expected to design the building within the cost limitations of $265,268. Of this about $193,000 is federal money, approved in 1967 and the remaining $72,268 is from a city bond issue passed in 1968.

The entire amount of money will be used for Phase I of the building which will include a day care center with kitchen, doctor's and nurse's office, a laundry room to service the building, teen center, senior meeting room, lavatories and an office of the Kingston Recreation Department.

The mayor will immediately make application to the federal government for funds for Phase II of the building which will include a gymnasium and supporting locker rooms to be built on top of the Phase I first floor.

The building will be located on the site of the old Orpheum Theatre on Broadway.

The meeting that led to the calling of the Common Council session was held last night at the mayor's office in City Hall.

The plans have been reviewed and approved with the Rondout Advisory Board.

Koenig expects that it will take four to six weeks for Schrowang to complete his preliminary plan which will also include soil tests.

$1,000 Robbery Under Probe

TOWN OF ULSTER

Search was under way today for a man wanted for questioning in connection with the robbery of a Hess Service Station employe that occurred as the latter was making a cash deposit at the night depository of the State of New York National Bank on Albany Avenue.

The holdup man got away with approximately $1,000, according to the victim, Gary O'Leary of Mt. Marion, a night manager at the establishment. O'Leary told State Police investigators that he saw no weapon in the hands of his assailant, who fled with the cash shortly before 12:45 a.m. today.

The man was described as six feet tall, slender build.

Meanwhile, Fishkill State Police and Poughkeepsie city detectives investigated armed robberies in those communities, and authorities said the description given in both cases was identical.

Troopers at Fishkill said a waitress was in Brenner's ice cream establishment on Route 82 in Hopewell Junction shortly after 6 p.m. Monday when a man entered and demanded money. The man was in his 20's, the girl said. He was 5 feet, 9 inches tall and had sideburns and a moustache and goatee. He wore a gold safari type jacket and dark pants.

The gun was described as small caliber.

An hour later, Poughkeepsie police received a call from Norman Betros, proprietor of a liquor store in Clinton Square that city that he had been robbed by an armed man. His description tallied with that of the man sought for the Fishkill holdup, police said.

Betros said the gunman fled with about $200 in cash.

Betros is a brother of State Assemblyman Emeel Betros of Poughkeepsie.

Route 209 Fatal

ELLENVILLE

A one car accident on Rt. 209 in the Town of Rochester this morning claimed the life of a man who apparently suffered a heart attack, lost control of his vehicle which went off the road and hit a tree, police reported. The identification of the victim was withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

According to a report of the Ellenville State Police, the victim was traveling south on Rt. 209 about 8:30 a.m., a quarter of a mile from the intersection of Samsonville Road, when he suffered the seizure.

The accident, Ulster County's 41st highway fatality of 1970 is under investigation by trooper Hubert Gray and Investigator Edward Whalen.

ALBANY

Governor Rockefeller has announced that the New York State Council on the Arts has awarded to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society a grant of $70,000. A total of $55,000 will be used in a cooperative music program which was developed during the past summer by the Philharmonic and the Associated Colleges of the Mid-Hudson Area.

The cooperative music program will provide new musical services and residencies of performing musicians to 10 colleges in the region.

The participating colleges are: Bard College, Bennett College, Dutchess Community College, Marist College, Mount Saint Mary College, State University College at New Paltz, Ulster County Community College and Vassar College, and two colleges which are not members of Associated Colleges, Orange County Community College and Rockland County Community College. Under the program, the New York State Council on the Arts grant provides $2 for every dollar from the colleges.

Claude Monteux, music director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, said, "The program is important for the future development of the Philharmonic, as it will provide more intensive performing opportunities for the present members of the orchestra and will attract new performers to the area."

Donald Eldridge, president of Bennett College and president of the Associated Colleges Board of Trustees, said, "This is an important step in the mutual development of performing music in the Mid-Hudson area, not only in the colleges but in the communities."

The full range of musical services will emerge from discussions among the participating groups: the college faculties, the students, the administrations, the Philharmonic and Associated Colleges. The Philharmonic can provide full orchestra concerts, dress rehearsals of concerts, chamber music, and musicians to supplement existing faculty or student performing groups, to play faculty or student compositions, to perform for students in classes, to accompany dance, drama or opera productions, and to work with students who want to compose and perform their own music. Students and faculty will be encouraged to take their musical productions to other campuses.

The cooperative music program originated three years ago, when Monteux developed a plan to bring highly qualified musicians to the Mid-Hudson region and to enable the Philharmonic and the colleges in the area to work together to enhance the music programs at the colleges. Last spring the plan was developed into a proposal by John Jacobson, executive director of Associated Colleges and Kenneth Fricker, manager of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society.

Dr. Sachs Named To Fluoride Unit

KINGSTON

Dr. Jeremiah Sachs of Kingston has been appointed to the New York State Citizens Committee for Fluoridation to represent Ulster and Greene Counties.

The announcement was made by Dr. Saul Sacks of Westbury, chairman pro tem of the committee which has approximately 140 members, including members of the legislature and representatives of statewide labor organizations, educators, parent-teachers associations, public health officials, municipal and county officials.

Among approximately 35 members of the legislature on the committee are Senator Earl W. Bridges, president pro tem of the Senate; Senator Joseph Zaretzkie, Senate Minority Leader, and Asemblyman Stanley Steingut, Assembly Minority Leader.

Dr. Sachs is chairman of the Fluoridation Committee of his local dental society. He is the immediate past president of the Kingston area Chamber of Commerce and is also past president of both the Ulster-Greene Dental Society and the Third District Dental Society.

He was present on Oct. 22 at a luncheon where Newburgh celebrated its 25th year of fluoridation and received from The Dental Society of the State of New York a "symbolic check" for $637,555.84 which was described as a "conservative estimate" by the New York State Department of Health of the savings to Newburgh residents as a result of the reduced costs for dental care there.

At that meeting, Dr. David B. Ast, assistant commissioner of the State Department of Health, and formerly director of the Division of Medical Services, compared the dental health of Newburgh and Kingston over the past quarter of a century. This was his summary:

In Newburgh, as in other communities with fluoridation, those who have had lifelong exposure to fluoridated water have about 60 per cent less tooth decay.

Loss of teeth due to tooth decay is reduced by more than 70 per cent.

The cost for dental care is cut in half.

When Newburgh was fluoridated in May, 1945, Kingston became the "control" city and measurements of the effects in fluoridated Newburgh have been measured against the record of non-fluoridated Kingston.

Job Training Program for 4 At Benedictine

KINGSTON

A new on-the-job training program for four employes of Benedictine Hospital was announced today by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who said the State Labor Department's Division of Employment has developed the program under the State Manpower Training Act.

Benedictine will upgrade four of its present employes as surgical assistants during the 20-week training program.

Under the State Manpower Training Act, the state will reimburse the hospital a total of $2,424 as a portion of the total training costs. The hospital will assume the remainder of the cost including the trainee's wages.

Benedictine engaged in a training program about a year ago when ten persons were taught the skills of a nurses aide and two as orderlies. All persons trained at that time were from the ranks of the unemployed.

Sister Mary Charles, administrator, commenting on the program, said that she is vitally concerned not only as a hospital administrator but as a civic-minded citizen in seeing that opportunity is given persons to become useful, skilled workers.

Employers wanting information on how to establish a job training program may write to the Office of Manpower Development, Division of Unemployment, New York State Labor Department, State Office Building Campus, Albany, N.Y. 12201.

Women Confined

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The cause of job equality for women might be advanced if women were drafted says the only woman instructor of ROTC in the U.S. Air Force.

Capt. Rosetta A. Armour, who teaches at Ohio State University, said drafting women "would tear down some sterotypes and help change men's attitudes toward women."

"Women are mostly confined to so-called womanly jobs now," she said.

Get Out and Vote

Congressional and state elections Nov. 3 will find 124 million of voting age. However, this figure will be reduced by four million aliens plus inmates of prisons, mental hospitals and other institutions.

What is even more disquieting is that off-year elections usually bring out only half the vote. The last off-year election in 1966 was decided by 46 per cent of the eligible voters, who were concerned enough to go to the polls and cast their votes. The presidential election of 1968 did better, but even that was decided by only 61 per cent of the voting-age population.

Talking of voting age, the Census Bureau says that if the voting age amendment of 1970, lowering the voting age to 18 years for national elections, were now in effect, about 10.2 million more Americans would become eligible to vote next month.

However, in the four states where the 18 to 20 year age group could vote, only one-third did so in 1968; or half those 21 and over, who took part in that election. This may not be true of future participation by 18 to 21-year-olds, but it is something to keep in mind. They may not be as eager to vote as their elders think they are. But again, if stirred by activists, they could do much to put the New Left in power.

One thing is correct in all this welter of statistics. It is still true that the party that gets out the vote wins. You cannot win by staying home, there is no gain saying that. Machine politics knows this fact of civic life only too well. They get out the vote and drive people to the booths to cast their ballots, if they have no other means of transportation. It pays off. If loyal citizens want this country to survive, they will get themselves and their neighbors out to vote for men who will see that it does.

Radical Haven—Algeria

Algeria has become the new haven for American radicals. First, Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver found a welcome in that country that is free from extradition to the United States. Then, Timothy Leary, who escaped from jail in San Luis Obispo, Calif., where he was serving a term on a narcotics conviction. Now, Bernardine Dohrn, student radical leader who had been missing for 10 months.

Cleaver announced the latest arrivals of refugees from American justice with a great fanfare, as if it were a blow to the American system.

Miss Dohrn has been named in indictments by a federal grand jury of conspiring with other Weatherman members to commit bombings in Chicago, New York, Detroit and Berkeley, Calif., and to establish units or cells to bomb and destroy police stations and other civic, business and educational buildings. Her name also appeared on a message from the Weatherman underground, claiming that the group had engineered Leary's escape.

Algeria's Socialist government has consistently supported so-called national liberation movements since gaining its independence from France. What these militant radicals are liberating in this country, only they know. Miss Dohrn predicted recently that "revolution would spread from coast to coast." If the revolutionaries continue to be caught, jailed, and escape to Algeria, there will be a very few to liberate. As a matter of fact, that might be a perfect solution for their revolutionary fervor.

1971 Housing Surge

The prediction that housing construction should increase approximately 20 per cent in 1971 would mean that such a surge would surpass the production of any of the past five years, when the yearly peak of 1.5 million units was reached in 1968. The level will be 1.7 million, according to McGraw-Hill's highly respected F. W. Dodge Construction Outlook for 1971.

Housing suffered this year from one of its periodic credit shortages, and—although construction has started to revive—the total number of starts this year is expected to reach only 1.4 million units. The availability of mortgage funds is now growing, which should reduce home mortgage rates and stimulate housing starts.

Next year's upturn in total construction should expand by about 10 per cent, to $74.35 billion, the Dodge prediction says. While housing will boom, other types of construction will decline: commercial office construction down 1 per cent to $9.32 billion; manufacturing plant building down 5 per cent to $3.8 billion.

There should be large 1971 increases in hospital and health construction, up 10 per cent to $3.3 billion; and sewer and water supply building, up 16 per cent to $1.1 billion. The pluses and minuses of the non-housing construction almost balance, leaving the lion's share of 1971's total building increases with the residential sector, up from $24.8 to $30 billion.

The housing spurt should be a big factor in stimulating buying in such related sectors as appliances, furnishings, floor coverings and the like, attracting huge consumer spending and moving the economy up throughout the year.

Russia's Part in Vietnam War Should Be Disclosed

WASHINGTON — Sometimes the most crucial news affecting the peace of the world seems to be treated as routine somewhere in the back news pages.

For while lots of attention was given the 25th anniversary of the United Nations last week, the Soviet Union took a step by which it not only lined up publicly with North Vietnam but agreed to give America's adversary in the Southeast Asia war additional military and financial assistance of considerable value. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, announced in Moscow on Friday that agreements were signed in the Kremlin on Thursday by Vice Premier Nguyen Con of North Vietnam in the presence of Soviet Premiere Alexei Kosygin "rendering economic and military aid and the allocation of credits to North Vietnam by the Soviet Union." Tass further said:

"The new agreements signifiy further strengthening of the fraternal friendship between the Soviet and Vietnamese peoples and an expansion of co-operation between the Soviet Union and Nortl Vietnam."

Somewhat similar documents were signed in October 1969 and on June 11, 1970, when the Soviets increased their military assistance to North Vietnam. The Moscow dispatch last Friday states that the Soviets have supplied not only Mig fighter bombers — some of which have been made in Russia and some in Red China — but also anti-aircraft missiles to the North Vietnamese. American officials estimate the amount involved in the latest transaction to be a billion dollars.

Small wonder that there is no progress at the Paris peace talks. The North Vietnamese take their orders from Moscow, and thus far it means standing firm against the United States. American effort through diplomatic channels at Moscow to secure co-operation in stopping the Vietnam war has been ineffective. Yet the "anti-war" groups in Congress and on the campuses are calling for an end to the war in Vietnam and a withdrawal of American troops no matter what the consequences to Southeast Asia.

The course of the administration here has been one of caution and restraint. President Nixon's speech at the United Nations was couched in conciliatory phrases. But maybe after the elections, the country will be told the whole truth — namely, that the Vietnam war would long ago have been terminated if it were not for the military aid furnished North Vietnam by the Soviet Union.

Although the President may wish to avoid at this time what is called a "confrontation" with the Soviets, there is no reason why the public opinion of the world should not be informed that the United States and its allies are striving to protect the right of self-determination of peoples, while Russia is supplying military aid to a nation guilty of flagrant aggression. The facts about the Vietnam controversy are not widely known. The extent to which the Soviet Union has financed the war against South Vietnamese and American troops needs to be disclosed.

The United States came to the aid of the Russian people in World War II and sent an army overseas to complete the mammoth task. Surely there are many reasons why the Soviet Union and the United States should join together to preserve the peace of the world. Russia, however, is spending a lot of money not only to supply military aid, both secretly and openly, to various countries but to support subversive agents who are at work in many lands seeking to overthrow existing governments and gain control for the Communist regime in Moscow.

It is a serious question how long these tactics should be permitted to continue without full exposure. At present, there is evidence of much Communist subversion in Latin-American countries. The election of a Marxist in Chile and the maintenance of a Communist foothold in Cuba are examples of how far-reaching the Communist machine is today.

While Red China has had considerable influence at Hanoi, it is believed that the Soviets are still on top because they have the money and the equipment to contribute.

The whole picture is a dismal one. It doesn't point the way toward a peace agreement at Paris on the Vietnam issue. Nor is there any sign of an abatement of Soviet mischief-making in Southeast Asian countries. Sooner or later, the non-Communist countries will have to face up to the facts of Communist subversion and insist that Moscow change its policy or see an increasing unfriendliness throughout the world toward the Soviet Union.

Rep. Dingell Shocked at $42,000 Spent for Federal Trade Office

WASHINGTON —Astounded by a $42,000 renovation of the Federal Trade Commission chairman's office, a House subcommittee has ordered a probe into all the plush new furnishings of Nixon administration bureaucrats.

The investigation presumably will include Attorney General John Mitchell's Departmental kitchen where his wife Martha has had expensive food warmers installed and the steamy confines of Interior Secretary Walter Hickel's sauna.

But it was the $42,000 FTC refurbishing which outraged Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a House regulatory agencies subcommittee. Dingell asked the General Accounting Office to peer into all government executive suites.

The study will "determine the extent to which taxpayers' money is being squandered on the lavish personal whims of government officials," says a confidential staff memorandum prepared by the Dingell subcommittee.

The memo deals mainly with Chairman Caspar Weinberger's brief tenure at the FTC, during which he gave American consumers their best representation ever, but got extravagant with the furnishings. He had a reputation, says the memo, of "being an extremely frugal and tight-fisted administrator with regard to tax funds (but) his standards of frugality appear to be somewhat more lax with regard to his own personal needs."

Weinberger had the FTC buy him a $2,800 desk, a $2,990 conference table, $1,465 credenza and $1,230 bookcase. The subcommittee memo says the purchases may have violated the law by not being taken from available federal stock lists.

If Dingell was astonished about the $42,000 price tag, he was outraged because Weinberger took many of the prize pieces, including the $2,800 desk to his new job as deputy budget head at the White House, leaving FTC to purchase still more furniture.

Commented the memo: "When an agency with limited budget such as the FTC must pay for this furniture out of its own operating expenses, and it is then moved to the executive branch, (this) must be of serious concern to the Congress and to the public."

Part of the blame for Weinberger's extravagance rests with Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon, the jovial old walrus who presided over the FTC before Weinberger. Dixon refused to move out of the chairman's office when his term ended.

Weinberger, therefore, had to seek other quarters which he claimed needed new furnishings.

Reached at his new job, Weinberger said he had delegated to his administrators the furnishing of his FTC office and that he knew no details of the costs.

On making off with the furniture, Weinberger said he understood it was customary for incoming budget office deputy directors to bring desks and chairs with them when they came from another government job, since the U.S. treasury paid either way.

Weinberger implied the Dingell probe stemmed from congressional anger over Weinberger's removal of a number of patronage FTC employees.

"Maybe we didn't appoint the men the Congress wanted," he said philosophically. Dingell himself has scrupulously avoided any interference with FTC personnel problems.

NOTE: Dingell's committee may want to take a look at the executive suite at the Federal Aviation Administration where the resident bureaucrats recently managed to spend more than $20,000 on refurbishing without buying a stick of new furniture. Asked about the extravagance on rugs and repainting, FAA officials at first denied that any such amount had been spent. Pressed, they finally acknowledged it, but insisted the renovation was needed. Insiders have informed this column, however, that much of the work was unnecessary.

"Demonstration" a Dirty Word?

The Air Force has flown another sortie against the English language.

The target is the word "demonstration" which has been officially labeled a "dirty word."

Indeed, only intervention by a general with a taste for English blocked an order changing it to "Data Accounting Flow Assessment (DAFA)" a term which would boggle the mind of any bureaucrat.

It all began at the Air Force Systems Command where "demonsration" was used to describe accounting reviews of contracts.

The Command's deputy chief of staff, Maj. Gen. H. C. Teubner, felt that "the meaning of the word 'demonstration' has come upon hard times."

Teubner made known this view at a staff meeting and eager subordinates scurried in search of another word. A stern memorandum titled 'acronyms in lieu of dirty words'" was issued by Col. Vincent J. Weigle, director of the commands's Management Analysis group.

"General Teubner took exception to the use of the word demonstration with respect to validating contractors," said Colonel Weigle ominously.

"Of course, no one attending the session disagreed with the general," to the surprise of nobody.

"We can appreciate the view of the general by referring to any newspaper today and discover that there are many demonstrations currently in progress — additionally, most if not all such demonstrations would be looked upon with disfavor by one group and, of course, favorably by the radicals involved.

"General Teubner's views were to seek a substitute word or words which would or could be described as more genteel, more acceptable and more descriptive . . ." Weigle's memo suggested "Data Accounting Flow Assessment (DAFA)."

When General Teubner saw what his dislike for "demonstration" had produced, he was appalled. He rejected the idea of DAFA and asked his command to replace "demonstration" with "audit review."

Henry J. Taylor Says
Byrd Provides National Lesson

RICHMOND, VA. — Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. now looks like the surprise winner in this state in a major upset, for he's doing it the hard way. Moreover, with the courage shown, Byrd is providing a national lesson.

Immensely respected here, Byrd, 55, is a chip off the old block. He won the seat of his late, great father in a close election after an interim appointment to the Senate when the senior Byrd retired. Then Byrd was caught in the cross fire for the Democratic senatorial nomination this year and broke with the insurgents battling within his party.

To each of us there can come a critical moment — well chosen or ill, it decides our future. Byrd announced that he would run for reelection, not as a Democrat but as an independent. It was one of those inner battles — a struggle that is the lot of men who are committed to convictions.

Many Republicans wanted Byrd on the Republican ticket. But the state's Republican party, grown virile and strong here, nominated Ray L. Garland from its ranks.

Against such organizational odds, which made Byrd's re-election impossible in the minds of most politicos, the Democratic and Republican leaders kissed Byrd's future goodbye. To them he already looked as forlorn as his campaign poster would look after the election.

Byrd had stood largely aloof from the party battles in this state, tending to his knitting in the Senate. There were many indications that Byrdland, created by his illustrious father, was breaking up, as if in the passing of the illustrious father Virginians seemed to hear the tolling of a bell whose old tower is lost from sight.

But because the younger Byrd has been a first-class senator and worked like a Trojan on the Senate Armed Services Committee and other committees, the opposition to Byrd is divided. Only once in a blue moon does a man come along, speak common sense, say what he has to say, and then sit down. Byrd is one of them. And he has ripped into the image-making opportunists in the senate, of both parties, like an expert shot knocking down birds without wasting a shell.

The black and labor blocs went to the G.O.P. in last year's election of Republican Gov. Linwood Holton, the first Republican governor of Virginia in this century. They're now back supporting Democratic senatorial nominee George C. Rawlings Jr. The Democratic politicos had insisted that Byrd's re-election absolutely depended on these blocs. But the conservatives of both parties who swung to Holton are showing a ground-swell support of independent Senator Byrd, apart from both parties.

The resounding rumpus at the state Democratic party convention, which assumed that Byrd must depend on the party for his re-election, turns out to have contained more noise than substances. The resounding rumpus at the state Republican convention about Byrd's dependence on a Republican label is proving to be an equally bad guess. These premises of the politicos plying their lifelong trade have vanished like a pricked balloon. And in this there's a national lesson.

Obviously, ticket-splitting has become the national norm. Voters in state after state discriminate wholesale. They thus resist predictable patterns. Moreover, there is a discernable anti-party feeling in much of the country.

Political parties, as such, are losing stature. It has grown as plain as the nose on your face that increasing millions believe the man is more important than the party. Thus the party is an increasingly small influence when the voters have a choice. With this the ability of the party to deliver votes regardless of its nominee is largely a dream of the politicos themselves.

The result destroys most premises that are based on voter registrations, that declare the voter to be a member of one party or the other, and that show a party constituency. Travel our country and you will find that the people are so far out ahead of the politicians in their feeling about all this that it's enough to make your head swim. And now we're seeing it crystal-clear in Virginia.

Today, completely reversing their early-summer judgment, even the top Virginia Democratic and Republican politicos I have talked with privately say that only some last-minute upset can beat Byrd.

Hanoi Places High Price For Lives of U.S. Prisoners

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The fate of U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam may depend significantly on how Canada, the United States and other Western countries react to terrorist kidnapers and their bargaining offers.

It is quite clear by now that Hanoi has been watching closely the Middle East plane hijackings and ransom negotiations, the series of kidnapings in various Latin-American countries and what deals were made and under what circumstances governments have refused to deal. In recent days, reports indicate Ho Chi Minh's successors are closely observing Premier Trudeau's moves in Canada in response to the killing of one hostage, Quebec's labor minister.

It is known further that Peking and North Korea directly encouraged the Palestinian commando group in the Middle East hijackings.

It is no secret that Hanoi, from the start of the war, has regarded U.S. prisoners as particularly valuable bargaining chips in talks with the United States.

As long ago as 1964 in South Vietnam, this reporter saw captured documents and talked with former officers of the Viet Cong who told of Hanoi directives that detailed the efforts which should be made to capture Americans and the importance laid on the U.S. prisoners being shipped to Hanoi. These orders made all too clear the major bargaining importance Hanoi placed on these men.

These facts in mind, it must be assumed that if kidnaper-terrorists can, by threatening the lives of their victims, extort major concessions from Western governments, it is likely that Hanoi will hold out for a very high price indeed for the lives of the Americans it now holds.

If Hanoi learns that the kidnapers are able to up their ante successfully by killing some of their victims, this result is not likely to be forgotten either by Ho's pupils.

Hanoi has already employed American prisoners as pawns.

On several occasions, in north and south, a few men have been released. In each case, the prisoners have been turned over to groups which the leaders of North Vietnam consider (in their literature and in their broadcasts) as co-operating groups on their side in the war. In private conversations in front of prisoners they have called these groups allies and co-operators and as the American arm of their war effort.

When Hanoi has released "lists" of prisoners, again it has been to these favored groups. When in Paris, the representatives of Hanoi have been approached by wives of prisoners, Hanoi spokesmen have referred them to these same groups as their avenue for information.

It is, of course, clear to any observer, that these moves have constituted an attempt by Hanoi to use the prisoners in order to build up the prestige of what Hanoi calls its friends and coworkers in the United States and to build up some emotional sympathy for these groups as being interested in and concerned for the prisoners. It is known from talks this reporter has had with former prisoners that Hanoi has consulted with these groups as to which American prisoners should be released so as to produce the political results desired by Hanoi.

The this, of course, is only the beginning. Only a handful of American prisoners have been freed. Hanoi has thus far refused to talk about prisoners and has said it will talk only after the United States meets its unconditional withdrawal demands. So one can only speculate on what price Hanoi will ask and what the fate of these men will be if Washington refuses to meet the Communist demands.

The latest reports list 376 Americans known to be prisoners in North Vietnam, 78 in South Vietnam and three in Laos. How many unknown prisoners there may be can only be conjectured.

Paltz Figures Dispute Laxity on Arrests

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEW PALTZ

Despite claims by dissident members of the Village of New Paltz Police Department that officers have been advised to ease off on narcotics and traffic arrests, there has been no such trend to support these claims.

In fact, according to the monthly police report submitted by Chief James Walrath at the regular meeting of the New Paltz Village Board, Monday night, narcotics arrests in October were double those made in September. The report noted that 33 narcotics arrests were made during the past month, while only 16 were made during the previous month.

During the same two month period there has also been 20 per cent increase in the issuance of vehicle and traffic summonses.

A check into police files revealed that the arrest totals in both areas were greater during October than during the same month last year, prior to Chief Walrath's appointment.

Allegations that Chief Walrath was ordering his officers not to make traffic and narcotics arrests were voiced recently by four anonymous New Paltz police officers on an area radio show. Shortly thereafter, one officer, Wayne O'Brien was fired by the Village Board. However, the board noted that this decision was made before the controversy was made public, and was prompted by O'Brien's failure to pass a state qualifying examination.

Walrath, who has been involved in police work for more than 30 years, characterized the charges as "poppycock without foundation," and said that the complainants were "nothing but kids, who can't obey orders."

At the board meeting Monday night, there was no mention made about the internal police controversy, which seems to be on the wane since O'Brien was dismissed. The board did, however, approve the appointment of O'Brien's successor, Michael Schwartz, and accepted Walrath's monthly report without discussion.

In other business at the Monday night meeting, the board received a polite complaint from a New Paltz High School student about pollution in he community and a not so polite complaint from a village resident on a variety of problems.

Ann Baker, a spokesman for the Earth Committee at New Paltz High School, politely admonished the board for not taking action to eliminate a junk pile alongside the Wallkill River. According to Miss Baker, her committee reported the eyesore last May and were assured prompt action.

She told the board, "We want to work with you, not against you."

New Paltz Mayor Henry Dubois told the youthful petitioners a number of problems have impeded action on the matter, and assured them that the mess would be cleared up soon.

At another point in the meeting Vincent Adamo, harangued the board with a list of problems which he claimed have been neglected for many years.

Among the several problems he brought up was the matter of an allegedly polluted brook near his home, which Adamo claimed was fouling the air.

Some members of the board took issue with the charge. Trustee John Logan said "I went down there and I couldn't smell it."

A Halting Plan to Kidnapers of Mate

By TERRANCE McGARRY

MONTREAL (UPI) —Barbara Cross, her voice halting as she pleaded in French, Monday night appealed to the kidnapers of her husband, James to release him "without any more delay."

Mrs. Cross, whose husband, the British trade minister, was kidnaped Oct. 5 at machine-gun point from his suburban Montreal home by Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ) terrorists, called him "a victim of circumstances."

Shortly before she made her dramatic appeal, the Quebec government reiterated its offer of safe conduct for Cross' kidnapers to Cuba in exchange for the Briton's freedom.

In a message to the FLQ and her husband, broadcast over the French-language radio station CKLM—used previously by the terrorists to convey their communiques stating conditions for Cross' safe return —Mrs. Cross said in a halting voice:

Mrs. Cross Pleads

"To those holding my husband, I express the hope that as a victim of circumstances, he will be well treated. I beg you to free him without any more delay."

The diplomat's blond wife began by speaking to her husband.

"It is now more than a week since I have heard from you," Mrs. Cross said.

"You are constantly in my thoughts.

"It is agonizing to endure the long period of waiting but I am confident that you are still alive," she said, speaking in French.

A government statement urged the terrorists to proceed to the Canadian pavilion at the Expo '67 World's Fair site and turn Cross over to the Cuban consul.

Last Letter Oct. 18

Cross' last letter to his wife was on Oct. 18. He told her he was well but warned his life was in danger if the kidnapers' demands —principally the release from Quebec jails for 23 convicted FLQ members —were not met.

Contacted more than three hours after the broadcast, a spokesman for Mrs. Cross said there had been "no response whatsoever (from the FLQ) to the house or to the police."

Police continued their manhunt to find Cross and his kidnapers as well as those of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, who was found murdered Oct. 17 a week after he was abducted by the FLQ.

President Nixon Signing the Drug Abuse Control Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation shifting federal narcotics enforcement emphasis from user to pusher and producer becomes law with President Nixon's signature today.

Nixon scheduled the signing of the Drug Abuse Control Act of 1970 at ceremonies at the downtown Washington headquarters of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The new law de-emphasizes punishment of drug users in favor of educational programs aimed at preventing a person from taking up the habit. It reduces the crime of possessing marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor.

But senators and representatives, with White House backing, wrote in stiffer penalties for pushers of narcotics and dangerous drugs, tightened restrictions on their legitimate sale and manufacture and armed federal narcotics agents with "no knock" search authority.

Inclusion of the no-knock provision, which allows officers with a warrant to enter a premise without announcing themselves, sparked a minor filibuster in the Senate and a fight in the House during the year and a half the bill was before Congress. On final passage, less than a month before the congressional elections, the President got what he wanted.

Included in the law is a provision for a study of mariujana effects federal officials hope will be given the same respectful response as the 1964 surgeon general's report statistically linking cigarettes and lung cancer.

Until that report is in, one year from now, the Nixon administration remains, in the words of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, "diametrically opposed" to any relaxation of laws prohibiting possession and use of marijuana.

The same study commission is required to present within two years a report on causes of drug abuse.

Possession of marijuana, previously a felony under federal law, is reduced to a misdemeanor. Judges are empowered to grant probation, parole or dismissal of charges in cases involving first offenders.

Casual distribution of marijuana, as typified by passing a reefer among friends, is considered a misdemeanor. All changes in penalties take effect six months hence.

Education, treatment and rehabilitation programs for drug and narcotics users are given an extra $26 million under the new law.

The measure brings under strict federal control the previously unregulated distribution of tranquilizers, pep pills, sleeping pills and similar drugs.

Rhinebeck Adopts Ethics Code

RHINEBECK

The Rhinebeck Board of Education Monday night adopted a Code of Ethics, as prescribed by state law.

The code, according to President Hans Boehm, follows the state guidelines closely. The committee on the Code was headed by board member James Kelley.

Boehm said that a new policy for the free school lunch program has been expanded, as required by law, and includes a more elaborate grievance program.

A request from a group of students for interscholastic golf to be added to the high school's program will be reviewed, as well as possible teams in skiing, swimming, and others, according to Boehm.

There was no discussion of potentialties of District Principal Ralph Steeves' proposal that two assistant principals be hired for next year, said Boehm. Steeves' suggestion last meeting was that this matter be given consideration for the next budget.

Hurley Sets Curfew, Public Hearing Dates

HURLEY

An increase in exemption for senior citizens was approved by the Hurley Town Board following a public hearing prior to the regular meeting Monday night.

The change in exemption approved by the board increases the allowable earnings of those over 65 from $3,500 to $5,000. They can earn up to $5,000 and still be eligible for a senior citizens tax exemption. Supervisor George Schroeder said that the increase in allowance will not be reflected in the 1971 tax roll.

Curfew was set at 11 p.m. for Halloween, Saturday. All persons under 18 years of age must be off the streets by that hour unless accompanied by an adult. Schroeder urged all parents to know where their children are and what they are doing on Halloween. Chief Constable Philip Sinagra said the entire constabulary will be on duty to control and prevent acts of vandalism.

A special hearing on the 1971 budget will be held 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 4 at the West Hurley Firehall. The board will take into consideration all recommendations at the hearing prior to adoption of the budget on Nov. 30.

Another hearing slated for November will discuss the office of town assessor. The board will seek public views on appointment of one assessor or keeping the board of three assessors. The hearing will be held Monday, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Hurley Firehall.

Gunmen Collect $175,000 at Mt. Vernon Bank

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y. (UPI)—Three men wearing Halloween masks held up the National Bank of Westchester for $175,000 Monday. Two suspects were arrested after a police chase, and most of the loot was recovered.

Police said the trio entered the bank 10 minutes before closing time and, while one held a shotgun on a dozen customers and six employes, the others leaped over a counter and scooped up the cash. Before they fled, the bank manager activated a movie camera and sounded the alarm.

Police chased the trio's car through heavy traffic. At one point, they said, the driver got out as if to surrender out, when officers approached, he fired a shot, jumped back into the car, and the chase resumed.

Two of the alleged bandits were arrested when their bullet-riddled car finally was pulled over to the curb in the Bronx. The third man fled.

Police retrieved $126,199 from the captured pair, identified as Lavandus Swindell, 33, of the Bronx, and Roy Yarbrough, 33, of Manhattan. The other $48,000 apparently went with the man who escaped.

A Different Interpretation

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A new interpretation of the 1970 census figures has revealed that the south —long considered a poverty region —outstripped the rest of the country during the last decade in rate of industrial growth and in income and education gains.

A Census Bureau staff worker told UPI the change was "fantastic." The revelation resulted from work done by statistical researchers at the Census Bureau who were pulling together fresh material for a speech last week by Census Director George H. Brown.

"A century after the Civil War, the decade of the '60s was a 'turning point in our history for the South," Brown told an international conference on population priorities at the University of North Carolina.

Perhaps the most revealing finding was that for the first time since the 1870s more people migrated into the South during the past decade then migrated from the South to other regions.

Army to Strip General of Two Honors

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Army announced tonight it is stripping a brigadier general of two honors, including the nation's third highest award for valor, because they were based on fabricated citations.

An announcement from Army headquarters said, however, that the investigation has so far shown conclusively that the general, Eugene P. Forrester, was not aware of the fabrication.

It was the first known time in Vietnam that the Army had revoked such awards from a general officer.

Berserk Man Kills Four, Shoots Self

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Roosevelt Johnson came home unexpectedly Monday night, carrying a 12-gauge shotgun.

Four persons lay dead after Johnson, 36, "went berserk," police said.

They said Johnson found Edward Corbett, 36, in the apartment with his common-law wife, Elizabeth Jones, 35, his daughter, Mary 7, and Darlene Martin, 13, a neighbor. Police said all were shot and killed.

Johnson then shot himself in the face and was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital where he was in critical condition, police said.

"It was a mess, man," a policeman said.

He said Corbett's body was found in the kitchen of the second-floor apartment in the city's North End section. He had been shot in the stomach. Mrs. Jones was found lying in the living room shot in the back. Johnson and the two girls were in the same room.

Police said the Martin girl was visiting the Jones apartment to help Mary with her homework. The girls were sitting on a living room couch watching television and studying when the shootings occurred. Mary was shot in the back and shoulder and Darlene was hit in the face.

Police said Johnson apparently had the shotgun with him when he entered the apartment, which he shared with Mrs. Jones and his daughter.

Police Superintendent Joseph Walsh described the shootings as the worst in the history of Bridgeport. A police inspector said, "I never saw one that bad in all my life."

Bowline Point Plant Date Now Set for '74

SPRING VALLEY, N. Y. (UPI) — Consolidated Edison Co. and Orange & Rockland Utilities announced Monday the completion date of the 600,000 kilowatt Bowline Point plant number two has been advanced by two years.

Originally scheduled for completion in 1976, the $100 million plant is now scheduled to begin operating in 1974.

Charles F. Luce, Con Ed's board chairman, said the advancement was made to compensate for 800,000 kilowatts initially planned for an expanded Astoria, Queens, plant. Mayor John V. Lindsay approved an expansion of 800 kilowatts for the Astoria plant, half of what Con Ed had asked.

Bowline plant No. 1 is scheduled for completion in 1972. Combined, the plants will generate 1,200 megawatts of electricity. Both plants are located on the west bank of the Hudson River near Haverstraw, about 35 miles north of New York.

In announcing the expansion, Orange & Rockland utilities stressed that both plants were designed "to blend aesthetics and environment in the construction of the two units."

Both units will be enclosed and an 18 - acre recreational park will be developed at the site.

The plant is designed to burn both low-sulphur fuel oil or natural gas.

Later, 16 sticks were found in an abandoned car after a 10-year-old boy carried one stick into his classroom at the 14 Holy Martyrs parochial school.

New Glasphalt Material Made From Bottles, Jars

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — More than a million used glass bottles and jars collected by Southern Californians have gone into the nation's first city street of glasphalt, a new paving material.

The 600-foot-long street, in an industrial area, is a result of federally sponsored research begun three years ago at the University of Missouri.

The problem: do something useful with waste glass and thus reduce America's mammoth trash problem.

One solution: blend 12 parts broken glass, six parts stone dust, one part asphalt and a half part lime, producing the new surfacing for roads.

Researchers said glasphalt passed all significant tests before being tried here, although they will watch the street carefully to make certain jagged edges do not result which could puncture tires.

Since last spring, the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute has been paying half-a-cent a bottle for used glass at eight recycling centers in the Los Angeles area.

The volume has reached a million bottles a day.

Most of the glass is melted down to make new containers. But about 300 tons of reclaimed, crushed glass went into the three-inch thick paving on the new Raymer Avenue here.

Developers of the industrial park where the street was laid gave the city a five-year guarantee the road would be satisfactory.

Questions and Answers

Rocky and Goldberg View the Election

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller says he is "more determined than confident" that he will win re-election, while Arthur J. Goldberg describes himself as "confident."

The Republican governor says he is spending "over $6 million" on his campaign, including $1.9 million for television-radio advertising — nearly fives times as much for that item as Democrat Goldberg.

Rockefeller portrays the contest now as "a horse race, neck and neck." Goldberg sees it as "a close contest with the tide turning in my favor."

These and other aspects of the battle for the governorship were discussed by the two candidates in response to seven identical questions posed to them separately by The Associated Press.

They will meet in their first face - to - face debate in a New York City television station Wednesday. In the meantime, these were the answers they gave to the AP's questions:

Question — How confident are you that you are going to win this election, and why?

Rockefeller — I'm more determined than confident.

Goldberg — I am confident that I will win the election because I believe that, after 12 years of increasing crime, drug addiction and taxes, and deteriorating schools, transportation and environment, the people of the state of New York want new leadership.

Question — What do your polls show?

Rockefeller — It's a horse race, neck and neck.

Goldberg — A close contest with the tide turning in my favor.

Question — What has been your most telling issue in this campaign?

Rockefeller — My record, experience and programs for the future, contrasted with my opponent's deficiencies as to all three.

Goldberg — The economy, with the cost of living rising faster in New York than in any other state except Alaska, with 400,000 New Yorkers unemployed, and the unemployment rate well over 6 per cent in many areas of the state. And drug addiction.

Question — There has been much talk that a major tax increase will be needed next year, regardless of who is elected governor. Exactly how would you handle this?

Rockefeller — There has been much talk by my opponent — but no credible evidence.

Goldberg — If I am elected governor, the state's revenue needs will be met by an equitable system under which the wealthy and special interests do not escape their fare share of the burden. The reverse has been true. . .The key to tax reform is forced federal revenue sharing. Every tax dollar paid to the state is deductible on the federal income tax return. Therefore, when taxpayers in higher income brackets are asked to pay their fair share of financing state government, the federal government in fact pays a great portion of the bill.

Question — How much are you spending on this campaign, and what portion is for television and radio advertising. What is the main source of your campaign funds?

Rockefeller — Over $6 million — about $1.9 million for radio and TV. A list of campaign contributors will be duly filed as required by law.

Goldberg — We are limiting ourselves to $430,000 for broadcasting. This comes to seven cents a voter, the amount provided for in the limitation on campaign costs bill just vetoed by the president. As to total campaign costs, we will not know that until we have filed our expenses 20 days after the election, as provided by law. Our source of funds is New Yorkers who want new leadership in the state.

Question — What has been your opponent's greatest weakness, in your estimate?

Rockefeller — His demonstrated lack of capacity for the job.

Goldberg — His 12-year record in office.

Question — What will you do if you lose?

Rockefeller — I've been too busy being governor and running for re-election to give it much thought.

Goldberg —I intend to win.

KINGSTON

Twenty-five would be non-smokers attended the first group therapy session of the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking held at the George Washington School Sunday night.

The Rev. Dan W. Schiffbauer, of the minster - physician team conducting the Five-Day Plan for Kingston citizens, reports a serious interest on the part of participants. "Some have been chain smokers. At least eight have been smoking for more than 25 years," he says.

Similar to the program followed by Alcoholics Anonymous, those attending the Five-Day Plan were assigned buddies, "to help them over the rough spots," the minister explains. Psychological as well as the physical aspects of attacking the habit were described.

Dr. Wootan prescribed a diet for participants. Consisting largely of fruit juices for the day, the diet is aimed at cleansing the system as rapidly as possible of the poisons deposited there from smoking.

One feature of the program was a color film showing a lung cancer operation. Called "Countdown," the film takes the viewer right into the operating room.

Another film was shown for the therapy session Monday, "Time Pulls the Trigger." Participants reported on how they fared during the first day away from their smokes, and further instruction was given in how to overcome the habit.

The Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking, sponsored by the Seventh-Day Adventist Church in cooperation with the Ulster County interagency Council on the Hazards of Smoking, has proved effective in 70 per cent of the cases, Pastor Schiffbauer reports.

Anyone still interested in attending the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking is urged to attend the session tonight which begins at 7:30 at the George Washington School Auditorium, located at 67 Wall Street.

Port Board Okays Contract With Teachers

PORT JERVIS, N.Y. (UPI) — The Port Jervis school board Monday night approved a new one-year contract with teachers, ending a dispute which had resulted in a five-day strike.

"The strike is over," Robert Hamilton, board president, said in announcing approval by a 7-1 vote.

Terms of the contract were to be made public upon formal signing.

The 160 members of the Port Jervis Teachers Association approved the settlement nearly unanimously Sunday night.

Teachers struck Oct. 15, but returned for one day Oct. 21, only to stay out again the next day. Last Friday was a school holiday for teachers' conferences.

The citys 3,200 pupils in six schools maintained a half - day schedule during the strike.

Marie Cooper was the only board member to oppose the contract. She said she did so because the teachers "made a mockery of law and order and made the children pawns in their dispute."

Grappling Resumed

KINGSTON

Sheriff deputies and police today resumed grappling operations in the Rondout Creek at the rear of Miron's after a woman's clothing had been found in the water, according to police.

Authorities said the clothing has been identified as belonging to Miss Doris Feeney, 50, who has been missing from her home at 83 Henry Street.

Police reported a pair of mittens were found along with books of matches distributed by her employer.

The cars were parked in a parking lot adjacent to the church property where a Halloween dance was in progress. Of the about 15 cars parked in two lines in the lot, all cars in the front row and one in the rear were damaged.

The investigation is continuing.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau says its new figures show Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. was the fastest growing community in the nation during the 1960's.

It said the town had only one resident in 1960 — a home builder who bought the land and incorporated it into a city. It said 5,007 residents moved into the town in the last 10 years, but the builder moved out.

One-Day Chest Drive in Woodstock Area Appears Successful

KINGSTON — More than 70 Ulster County Community Chest volunteers conducted a house-to-house solicitation Sunday throughout the Woodstock and West Hurley areas, and while the financial results of the one-day drive have not been reported as yet, all indications point to a successful campaign effort.

General Chairman for the Woodstock-West Hurley area, Peter W. Rakov, who is the manager of sales promotion at Rotron in Woodstock, said that the house-to-house phase of the 1970-71 Community Chest campaign had been under the direct leadership of Mrs. George Eichler of Bearsville, and added that much of the drive's success was due to Mrs. Eichler's untiring efforts.

Mrs. Eichler, whose husband was recently named as a volunteer recruiter for the newest agency of the Ulster County Community Chest, the Ulster County Blood Bank, has long been active in Woodstock activities. The Bearsville resident is currently the chairman of the Golden Cheer Club of Woodstock, the secretary of the Fire Auxiliary No. 1 of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1, and the welfare secretary of another of the Ulster County Community Chest agencies, the Salvation Army.

In addition to her other activities Mrs. Eichler is also a member of the Rebekah Lodge in Bearsville, and has worked for many local organizations such as the American Legion and the Woodstock Library Fair.

Chairman Rakov said that to date about 30 per cent of the Woodstock-West Hurley area's goal of $11,000 has been reported by his volunteers in the Special Gifts and Retail Divisions, and the chairman was most hopeful that when all the returns are in from these two sectors of the campaign, as well as the report on Sunday's house-to-house effort, the 1970-71 goal would be reached.

Kingston LWV Studies Air Pollution—Causes, Effects

KINGSTON — Kingston League of Women Voters has recently started to study the causes and effects of air pollution in the area. One of the startling facts about dirty air noted by the League study group is the annual cost in the state, approximately $65 per year per person.

"But dirty air is also a very real killer. It's struck in London, New York and Donora, Pa. However, dirty air is not limited to big cities. It is also present in outlying areas where it blights vegetation, ruins shrubs and flowers, severely damages vegetables and trees, and often makes livestock sick.

The week of Oct. 26 is designated Clean Air Week. The following list is suggested by the LWV as a positive action everyone can take to lessen the cause of air pollution:

Don't let your car idle unnecessarily. Auto exhaust is the single greatest source of air pollution.

Don't burn leaves or trash. In addition to violating an ordinance, it is befouling the air. Report anyone who does violate this ordinance. Let your autumn leaves decompose and create a fine compost pile.

Buy non-leaded gasoline.

If you are going to buy a new car, get one equipped with pollution control devices.

Walk, bicycle, share rides, or use public transportation whenever possible.

Stop smoking.

Keep furnace clean and well adjusted. This not only keeps pollution down, but will help avoid unnecessary breakdown and large repair bills.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan, non-profit organization, open to all women 18 years of age and over.

BOCES Hears Report on Data Processing Services

NEW PALTZ — The Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services heard a comprehensive report on Data Processing Services.

Sanford Bernstein, BOCES director of data processing outlined the extensive services of his department. A total of 19 school districts comprising 66,000 students in Dutchess and Ulster Counties are provided with services which include census, attendance, grade reporting, scheduling, payroll, accounting, budget preparation, experimental services and others.

Dr. Jack Roosa, BOCES executive officer, announced that the New York State Education Department recently designated Ulster BOCES to serve as the Catskill Regional Center to provide data processing services to school districts in Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange Counties as part of the planning for the New York State Educational Information Services.

In routine business, the board approved revenue anticipation notes of $25,000 for vocational education equipment project, approved plans for the "self-suportive" adult education program and approved a Manpower Development Training Program for licensed practical nurses. The New York State Division of Employment has indicated a need for this class and will select the adults to be enrolled.

Board members discussed resolutions to be considered by the New York State School Boards Convention in Syracuse and instructed voting delegate George Langwick, BOCES president, on each resolution.

The board will meet in regular session 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 24, at the Wallkill Administration Center, Main Street, Wallkill.

The Ulster BOCES is supported by Ellenville, Highland, Kingston, New Paltz, Onteora, Rondout Valley, Saugerties and Wallkill School districts.

Kingston Delegates Attend State Jaycees Convention in Rochester

ROCHESTER — Members of the Kingston Jaycees attended a New York State Jaycees convention this past weekend at the Flagship Motor Inn, Rochester. More than 500 New York State Jaycees and their wives were on hand to honor the five recipients who have made outstanding contributions to their communities or professions.

Nominations of men between the ages of 21 and 35 are submitted by local Jaycee Chapters from throughout the state for this Distinguished Service Award. Nominees need not be members of the Jaycees. The host chapter's DSA committee screens all nominations, which are then forwarded to a team of judges for final selection. The judges are a group of prominent citizens chosen by the State DSA chairman. Selection of the five DSA winners are based on three criteria:

Outstanding contributions to the general welfare of the people of the community, state or county.

Outstanding progress and accomplishments—either personal or professional.

Outstanding leadership ability, as demonstrated in civic and personal achievements.

President Joseph Vartanesian and local delegates participated in forums conducted by the New York State Jaycees. These forums included environmental pollution; drug abuse; metro affairs; internal leadership training and future directions.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

COMMEMORATIVE POSTAGE STAMP — The 50th anniversary of the constitutional amendment that brought American women the right to vote was observed with the issuance of a six-cent stamp. Ward Brackett of Westport, Conn., designed the horizontal stamp. It has a "before and after" theme. On the left panel is a half-century old automobile, driven by a derby-hatted man, with three women passengers. Standing beside the car are women carrying a "Right to Vote" sign and an American Flag. The panel on the right depicts a modern woman operating a voting machine. The stamp is printed in blue and at the top of the left panel is "Woman Suffrage." Beneath is "1920-1970" and across the bottom is "50th Anniversary." A fitting tribute to women from the inner sanctum of the U. S. Government Printing Office.

Sorosis Hears About Weaving

Sorosis Club of Kingston met at the home of Mrs Frank Falknor in Boiceville on Monday afternoon, October 19 and Mrs. Henry Eighmey, president, conducted the business meeting during which plans were made for the annual Care Tea. This is to be an open meeting held in the Fair Street Reformed Church Parlor on November 16th. The speaker will be Mrs. Maxine G. Blauner, Assistant Regional Director of Care.

Mrs. Frank Falknor introduced the speaker for the afternoon. Miss Berta Frey of Bearsville, N.Y. Miss Frey, who is nationally acclaimed for her expertise in weaving talked about "The Legend of Weaving." Her talk was illustrated with samples of weaving from many parts of the world. The samples included a square of silk with very fine weaving in a floral pattern done in France in the Louis XIV era, an equally fine Turkish scarf woven with silver and gold strands so delicate one needs a magnifying glass to distinguish the stitches and a beautiful Hungarian apron made with many rows of multicolored designs. Also shown were a blouse made and worn by a Guatamalian woman, the double marriage shawl of an early Mexican, and a small envelope-type bag woven with corn husks by the northwest American Indian.

Miss Frey has a tapestry on display now at the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen which won first prize this year. It is 11 ft. by 4 ft. in size and its theme is the Ten Virgins of the Biblical parable. The tapestry was made by Miss Frey to grace a wall in the new church parlor of the Presbyterian church in her home town of Corsicana in Texas. This spring the tapestry won national acclaim and tribute at the Cooperstown Festival.

The meeting was followed by tea with Mrs. Vincent Carr pouring.

Sorosis meets next at the home of Mrs. William Rylance on November first. Mrs. Ruth Smiley will be the guest speaker.

WORLD COMMUNITY DAY SERVICE — Kingston Council of Church Women United are planning for World Community Day Service on Friday, Nov. 6 at 1:30 p. m. at Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers Streets in Kingston. Elizabeth Post Answers Etiquette Problems

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

VISITORS OVERSTAY CHILDREN'S BEDTIME

Dear Mrs. Post: When friends bring small children and stay long past my child's bedtime, what should be done? Put our child to bed at his usual time? Allow him to stay up even though he will be worn out next day? Offer to keep them overnight, which would be quite a job as this happens at least once a week? They are good friends but have different ideas about raising children.—Mrs. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: All the children should be put to bed at a reasonable hour. Tell your friends that your son is accustomed to going to bed at such-and-such a time, and he needs the sleep. Suggest that they bed their own children down at the same time in another room. The children need not spend the whole night. It does them no harm to be aroused and carried home when the parents leave.

Visiting a New Baby

Dear Mrs. Post: Should a new mother invite the aunts and uncles to stop and see the new baby, or should they call and say they would like to see the baby and will stop by on a certain night? Which is proper?—Ellen J.

Dear Mrs. J.: It is best if the mothers asks the aunts and uncles over, because she can choose the best time for them to see the baby. However, some young women feel shy about this, fearing the aunts and uncles would have to show an interest they may not feel. So if the invitation from the mother is not forthcoming, there should be no hesitation about one of the aunts calling and saying "We're so anxious to see the baby. When would be a good time for us to drop in?"

What Did You Say?

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the proper thing to say when you haven't heard what the other person has said? Do you say "Pardon" or "Please?" —Margie

Dear Margie: Neither. You say "What did you say?" or "I'm sorry. I didn't hear you." You may add "Would you repeat that, please?"

Rule of Thumb for Resort Tipping

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I plan to take our three children for a two-week vacation. We will be staying at a motor resort, occupying two adjoining rooms, and will eat breakfast and dinner at the resort. The cost per day is $51.00 for the five of us ($15.00 per room and $21.00 for meals). When and how much do we tip the chambermaid, waiter, and/or bus boy?—Mrs. Murray

Dear Mrs. Murray: Your total bill will be approximately $714.00. For a long stay, such as yours, you should count on paying between 10% and 15% of the net amount in tips. I would suggest $20.00 for your maid—$5.00 per room per week. You will probably sit at the same table each day and your waiter or waitress would receive $45.00 at the end of the stay. Your bill for meals totals approximately $300.00 and $45.00 equals the normal 15% tip if you tipped at each meal. The porters, bell boys, etc. are tipped 25¢ to $1.00 for carrying luggage, room service, etc. when the service is rendered.

* * *

Who do you tip? When, and how much? You will find the answers to these questions in my booklet "The Etiquette of Tipping." To get a copy, send thirty-five cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

RUTH MARY DUBOIS

Members of the Study Club of New Paltz will have a chance to talk over (and possibly solve) that bug-a-boo problem of skirt lengths at their meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 3, at 1:30 at the New Paltz Savings Bank.

Local fashion columnist, Ruth Mary DuBois (Mrs. Jesse E.), formerly a fashion editor and teacher of communications, will speak on "The Skirt Length and What to Do About It." She will discuss the hemline battle, pro and con, and will make practical suggestions on how to lengthen dresses, skirts and coats. Members are urged to bring their questions and or their perplexing garments for possible solutions.

Mrs. DuBois will talk briefly also on other current fashion trends stemming from widespread interest in ecology, life styles, and ethnic influences. She will illustrate her talk with fashions from the new Village Closet in Simmons Plaza in New Paltz and Flah's of the Kingston Shopping Plaza and Poughkeepsie.

Hostess for the meeting will be Mrs. Albert Metz. Miss Mavis Taylor and Mrs. William Waters will be in charge of refreshments.

Muhammad Ali Is Back and Ready for Frazier

ONE IN A SERIES — Cassius Clay connects with the first in a series of rights in the first round against Jerry Quarry in their Monday night fight. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

TKOs Quarry in Third

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Muhammad Ali is back and ready to meet champion Joe Frazier in a fight that should be an explosive climax to what has been several years of confusion, frustration and doubt in boxing's heavyweight division.

"I'm ready to settle the title," Ali said Monday night after disposing of tough Jerry Quarry in three rounds in Ali's first fight in 3½ years.

"Quarry was much harder to fight than Joe Frazier will be," said the man who rose to the heavyweight championship as Cassius Clay and then was stripped of his title when he was convicted of refusing induction into the Army.

"We're ready to fight him as soon as we can get rid of Foster and as soon as Clay can get ready," Frazier's manager, Yank Durham said in East Stroudsburg, Pa., where Frazier is training for a title defense against light heavyweight king Bob Foster in Detroit Nov. 18.

Frazier did not see Ali's triumphant return, which was shown on closed circuit television, but he didn't go to sleep until he knew the result.

Foster, who has a thunderous left hook could upset an Ali-Frazier fight. Another block could be Ali's conviction which drew a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence. The conviction still is being appealed.

Ali was a heavy favorite to win the historic fight at Atlanta's old Municipal Auditorium, jammed with 5,100 people, but it was the manner in which he won it which showed that indeed he once again is a major force in boxing.

From the opening bell of the scheduled 15-rounder until the fight was stopped at the end of the third round with blood gushing from Quarry's split left eye brow, Ali was in complete command.

Using his 5½-inch reach advantage and showing he had not lost his punching speed, Ali peppered Quarry with stinging left jabs and jolted him with left hooks and rights. It was a straight right in the third round that ripped open Quarry's eyebrow, a wound that required 15 stitches.

"The guy I saw with Quarry was the same guy that fought Folley," said Ali's manager, Angelo Dundee. "I was amazed at what I saw."

Ali, now 28, fought Zora Folley March 22, 1967 and won by a seven-round knockout.

Ali's transformation from lecturer, actor and fast food impresario to a fighter that closely resembled himself 3½ years ago was truly amazing. Ali weighed 238 when he began training for the Quarry fight six weeks ago. Monday night he weighed 213½, just two more pounds than he weighed when he fought Folly and 16 pounds more than Quarry.

Ali's victory not only opened the way for him to get a crack at regaining the championship, which he points out he never lost in the ring, it opens the way for one of the most lucrative fights in history.

Monday night's fight did more for Ali than just restore his pride. He figures to get more than a million dollars from his percentage while Quarry could end up with about $500,000. Ali had been guaranteed $200,000 against 42½ per cent; Quarry $150,000 against 22½ per cent.

The only statistic announced was the sellout crowd of 5,100 in the Auditorium. There were no figures on the live gate or the gate from closed circuit television shown at 206 locations, with 900,000 seats in the United States and Canada.

The bout also was beamed live to Europe, South America, Australia, Asia and the Soviet Union, with a delayed telecast to Great Britain.

Winning the fight was termed by Ali "more than a win for a fighter—it was a social victory." This was a reference to his victory against the banishment imposed on him after his conviction.

Ali saw plans for many fights fall through until Atlanta granted him a license. Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox publicly opposed the fight but could not legally stop it since it was municipally licensed. Georgia has no state boxing commission.

Since being licensed to fight in Atlanta, Ali also has been granted a license by New York State.

The crowd, dotted with such personalities as actor Sidney Poitier, singer Dianna Ross, comedian Bill Cosby, baseball star Hank Aaron and fighter Jimmy Ellis, was solidly behind Ali and roared its approval of his victory, one of the most important and, for him, probably the most satisfying of his career.

Ali's comeback fight was the 30th victory, 24th by knockout in 30 fights since turning pro in 1960.

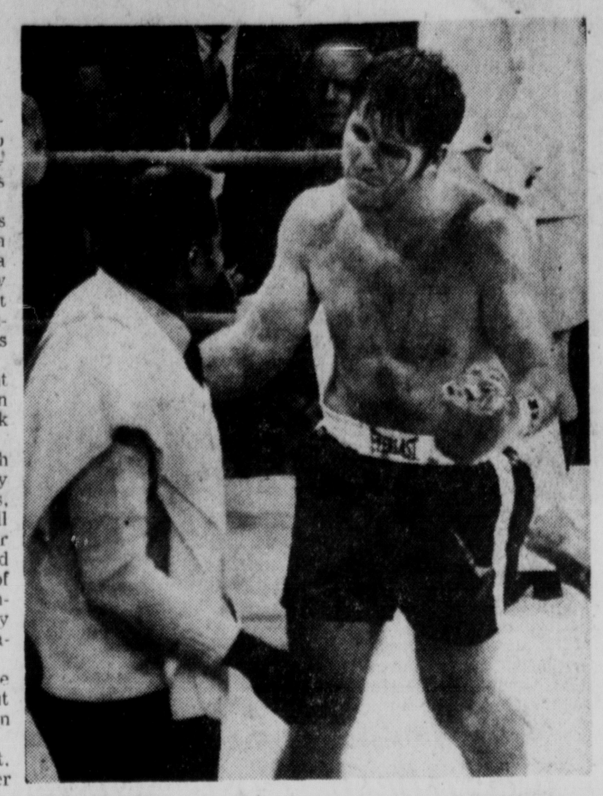

While Ali's future is bright, the 25-year-old Quarry's career is clouded.

The fighting Irishman from California was outgunned from the start but he didn't want to quit. His trainer, Teddy Bentham, shouted to referee Tony Perez at the end of the third round that it had gone far enough. Perez then examined the cut, without calling a doctor, and stopped the fight.

Quarry, threw his hands up in anger and started after Perez. His father, Jack Quarry, shouted, "If you go back in that ring you'll never fight again."

So ended Quarry's third failure in a big fight. He lost a 15-round decision to Jimmy Ellis in the World Boxing Association Title tournament after Ali was deposed and he was knocked out in seven rounds in a title fight with Frazier with whom he was trying for a rematch.

Quarry's record now is 37 victories, five losses and four draws.

PLEASE REF: Jerry Quarry seems to be pleading for a second chance from Referee Tony Perez after Cassius Clay was awarded a TKO win in third round Monday night at Atlanta, Ga. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Goal Line Stand Keys Vikings Win

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Carl Eller simply explained that the Minnesota Vikings took the right attitude to the line of scrimmage on a game-turning goal line stand against the Los Angeles Rams.

"We never doubt ourselves," said Eller, a 6-foot-6, 250-pound defensive end. "We realize the percentages. But we will never concede."

The Rams, after Kermit Alexander's 49-yard return of a deflected punt, had a first down on Minnesota's two with 19 seconds left in the first half and the Vikings leading 10-0 in a rainy, muddy National Football League game Monday night.

First, Les Josephson got a yard in the middle. Roman Gabriel got a few inches on a quarterback sneak. And Gabriel was smothered in the middle again on third down as time ran out for the second time of the half, and the Vikings finished up with a 13-3 victory in the Monday night television game.

The Rams actually got an extra down after Gabriel's second down thrust over right tackle and no time on the scoreboard clock. But referee Fred Silva ruled that the Vikings did not unpile in time, and gave Gabriel another down.

But it made little difference.

Alexander actually thought he had put six points on the board with his run after Willie Ellison stormed into get a hand on Tom McNeill's punt. Jim Lindsey tackled him at the two.

"I thought I was over," said Alexander. "I should have tried to elude Lindsey, but I was worrying about a fumble."

Alexander had cause for worry. The Rams lost four of seven fumbles and Vikings turned two of them into 10 points.

Ram return man Alvin Haymond dropped a punt on the Ram 18 in the first period, and Kent Kramer recovered for the Vikings.

Bill Brown slipped between guard and tackle, sped up the middle up the field and took Gary Cuozzo's 17-yard touchdown pass in the end zone for a 7-0 edge.

Rams' running back Larry Smith fumbled in the second period, Alan Page picked it up at the Los Angeles 22 and ran to the 14. Fred Cox kicked a 13-yard field goal.

Dave Ray kicked a 23-yard field goal for the Rams in the third period, but Cox booted a 25-yarder for the Vikings in the final quarter.

The Vikings held the Rams to 100 yards total offense, 34 rushing, and piled up 146 rushing of their own against the team that had led the NFL in defensing the run.

Bill Brown led Minnesota's ground attack with 62 yards and became the 13th player in NFL history to surpass the 5,000-yard mark in rushing. Dave Osborn added 58 yards.

The victory gave the Vikings a 5-1 record and sends them into Detroit next Sunday to meet the Lions, also 5-1, for the Central Division lead of the National Conference. Los Angeles, dropping to second with a 4-2 record in the West behind San Francisco's 4-1-1, plays at New Orleans.

Eight Straight For the Pistons

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Undefeated Detroit Pistons shot 64 per cent from the field to crush Seattle Sonics, 142-111, Monday for their 8th straight win — a new club record in National Basketball Association Monday night. Dave Bing paced the Pistons with 35 points.

In the only other NBA game, Cincinnati Royals posted their first victory after five losses by whipping Atlanta Hawks, 126-107. Johnny Green, the oldest player in the NBA at 36, led the Royals with 30 points.

The Frazier Reaction

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier wants a crack at Muhammad Ali.

"We're ready to fight him as soon as we can," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, after Ali demolished Jerry Quarry in Atlanta Monday night.

Frazier, the heavyweight champion, is at his East Stroudsburg, Pa., retreat training for a Nov. 18 meeting with Mac Foster in Detroit.

"We're ready to fight him as soon as we can get rid of Foster," said Durham, " and as soon as Clay can get ready. I sure hope he doesn't want to fight again until he fights us."

Dunham, in a telephone interview from East Stroudsburg, said the champ was informed of Monday night's third-round technical knockout.

Reaction?

"He just went to sleep," said Durham, "Joe is more concerned about Foster now than he is about Muhammad Ali. Joe said he licked Quarry already and he's fighting Foster next. He says, 'one thing at a time.' "

Durham said he watched the fight on closed circuit television in Allentown, Pa., and was highly dissatisfied with Quarry's performance.

"I thought he'd be fighting a much stronger fight," said Durham, "I figured Clay would cut him—but I didn't think it would happen that quick. I don't think Quarry fought too smart a fight."

Durham insisted Frazier would handle Ali differently.

"We're going after him, we won't let him run around the ring," said Durham, "We'll make him run."

Durham was asked about the remark in the ring Monday night by Ali, the former champion, of wanting "to settle the title" with Frazier.

"There's no settling any title," said Durham. "We are the heavyweight champions of the world. It's our title."

Kickers Lose

HALEDON, N. J. — Center Forward Leo Salvador booted home two goals to pace Haledon of the South Division to a 4-0 victory over Kingston Sport Club Kickers of the North Division in an inter-division Premier League soccer match here.

The loss was the fourth against one win and a tie for the New York squad, which suffered a bad setback when defensive star Winnie Soddemann had to leave the game after an injury shortly after the second half got underway.

It was Haledon's third victory against two losses.

Outside Right Vince Marciano put Haledon on the scoreboard eight minutes after the opening whistle on a breakaway from Kingston's right fullback, Olaf Weber. The next 37 minutes produced a scoreless duel.

Salvador boomed home his first goal at the 74-minute mark with an assist from George Heiss, the inside left. Heiss connected five minutes later on a pass from Bob Vargas, a substitute back for Haledon.

Salvador slammed home unassisted to close out the scoring at 84 minutes. Haledon's defense kept the Kickers pretty well bottled up throughout the game and the loss of Soddemann enabled the Haledon team to take undue liberties with the Kingston goalie.

Haledon's team for the first time this season was spiked with college players, who, they said, had permission from their colleges to play on independent teams of their own choice.

Marciano and Doug Wark, two excellent wingers, constantly put pressure on the Kingston defense. However, the Kickers had three excellent chances to score.

In the first half, Kassim Selimotic outmaneuvered the Haledor goalie but missed the undefended goal. Five minutes later, Louis Horacio could not connect on a perfect pass from Jimmy Reinhardt and two minutes after that, Bob Joyette hustled the ball away from the goal and, like Selimotice, coudln't hit the open net.

The Kickers return to the friendly confines of Oehler's Soccer Stadium at Morgan Hill to meet Spring Valley next Sunday at 3 p.m.

In other Premier Division action, Dalmatinac topped Spring Valley, 4-1; Newark over Passaic, 2-0; Doxa 4, Brooklyn 1; Kolpin 6, College Point 1; Austria 2, Bavarians 1.

AP Tabs Texas No. 1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Texas Longhorns, defending national champions, sneaked past Ohio State today into first place in The Associated Press college football poll.

Texas, which trounced Rice 45-21 last weekend to run the nation's longest winning streak to 25 games, drew one less first-place vote than Ohio State—16-15—but piled up 670 points to 664 for the Buckeyes, who had to come from behind in the second half to defeat Illinois 48-29.

Some 38 sports writers and broadcasters across the country participated in the poll, which had Ohio State on top all season.

The Longhorns, Buckeyes and third-place Notre Dame all have 5-0 records.

"This really does flabbergast me," enthused Coach Darrell Royal, who once said Texas could never be No. 1 unless every team in the Big Ten had been beaten. "It really surprises me," he added, "but it's a pleasant surprise."

Then he asked with a chuckle, "This isn't the final poll, is it? Notre Dame's still right in there and we have five games left."

Besides Ohio State, fifth-ranked Michigan also is an unbeaten Big Ten team.

Notre Dame picked up four of the remaining seven first-place votes, with one apiece going to No. 4 Nebraska, No. 5 Michigan and No. 7 Air Force. All those teams retained last week's rankings, but Stanford climbed past Air Force from eighth to sixth after edging UCLA 9-7.

Notre Dame was idle last weekend, while Nebraska crushed Oklahoma State 65-31, Michigan whipped Minnesota 39-13 and Air Force trounced Boston 35-10.

Rounding out the new Top Ten were Arkansas, Tennessee and Louisiana State, which were ninth, 11th and 14th, respectively, a week ago.

Auburn, a 17-9 loser to LSU, fell from sixth to 12th and Southern California dropped from 10th to 18th after bowing to Oregon 10-7.

The Second Ten consisted of Arizona State, Auburn, Mississippi, San Diego State, Pittsburgh, Oregon, Missouri, Southern Cal, UCLA and Northwestern.

Last week it was Tennessee, Arizona State, Ole Miss, LSU, Houston, UCLA, San Diego State, Pitt and Colorado and Toledo tied for 19th.

Maroons Play 1-1 Tie

FALLSBURG

Kingston High School's soccer team, paced by the fine play of halfback Art Freer, came from behind to gain a 1-1 tie with host Fallsburg yesterday in a DUSO League match. The Maroon Booters are now 6-1-3 for the season and play at Middletown Thursday.

Fallsburg kept the Kingston offense from mounting any serious assalts on the the goal in the first half as they took a 1-0 lead at 12:06 in the second quarter. Chuck Hinton took a ball on the rebound in front of goal and smacked it in off the post for the unassisted score.

The tying shot came at 10:21 in the third period as Freer took a backward push pass from Pete Fowler on a corner kick situation and fired a chip shot into the net from 25-yeards out.

KHS goalie Jim Corsones had 9 saves while host net-tender John Carter had 18. KHS took 22 shots on goal and Fallsburg had 11.

"Freer was the difference between the tie and the loss," said Maroon Coach John Hunter. "He fired us up in the second half and did a splendid job. He'll be starting somewhere against Middletown Thursday. Fred Robinson also played an outstanding game on defense," said Hunter.

"I don't know what or why it is," Hunter continued, "but we have a fine defense that keeps us in the games. It's the offense that can't win it for us. We have scored just three goals in three games and haven't been beat. We tie. The defense do an excellent job, getting the ball over the line and then when we get it down front, we can't put it together.

Will Honor Art Flick

KINGSTON

Catskill Mountain Chapter of Trout Unlimited will sponsor "Art Flick Night" at its Nov. 5 meeting at the Bonanza branch of Kingston Savings Bank on Route 9W North.

Flick is the widely known conservationist and author of "The Streamside Guide," one of the most widely used angling guide and reference material books ever published. The original publication copies are today regarded as collectors' items.

Early this year the book was reprinted and Flick will be present at the meeting to autograph books purchased that evening, as well as those already purchased, if brought to the meeting.

Flick also devoted many years of his life to a study of the insect hatches in Eastern streams.

Also featured at the meeting will be a new NTU film, "The Way of the Trout." It is a superb work of material and underwater color photography. It covers the complete life of a trout from the mating and spawning of the fingerlings and the many natural predators encountered during its growth to an adult trout.

Meeting starts at 7:30 p.m.

Woodstock Club Presents Pro $1,400 Purse

Hutchins — 20 Years Later

WOODSTOCK

Golf and country club memberships have experienced phenomenal growth since Jim Hutchins succeeded the late Warren Townley as Woodstock Country Club professional in the spring of 1951. And the tremendous growth has brought with it inevitable changes in attitudes about the game itself, its tradition, philosophy and rules.

Woodstock Country Club members took note of Hutchins' 20 years of service at the recent annual President's Dinner and presented the popular pro with a purse of $1,400.

It was inevitable that Hutchins would have to answer questions from a fellow club member and home town journalist. A purist with a strong feeling about golf and its traditions, Hutchins spelled out the philosophy he has acquired over the past two decades.

"Golf has grown phenomenally since I started my career as a pro," said Hutchins, "but it has lost some of its traditions along the way. Some of this is due because a great number of golfers don't know the rules, some don't care and many more were never associated with a country club atmosphere."

"Self-participation seems to be the total pre-occupation of a great many golfers today," the tall, swarthy, South Carolinian went on. "The club champion used to be the biggest man in the club, but not so today. In many clubs the champion is scarcely known and fewer members concern themselves about the club championship."

It wasn't that way in the early days at Woodstock, he recalled. Everything came to a grinding halt on the day of the championship finals. The bar and kitchen were closed and almost the entire membership moved out to the golf course and followed the finalists for the whole match. Couldn't happen today.

Hutchins is disenchanted with the constant changes in club championship formats and the obvious reluctance of modern players to subject themselves to qualifying rounds.

"Club championships in the best tradition included a qualifying round and match play," Hutchins noted. "First, it was an honor to qualify and, secondly, the qualifying medal was a highly coveted prize. It stayed that way for many, many years."

"Today, we find," he went on, "new committees seeking new methods to determine the champion. Medal play is substituted for match play perhaps in an effort to speed up play and avoid several weekends of play."

The Woodstock pro observed that, "I personally have always preferred match play over medal play. In qualifying and match play, a golfer must produce on a given day. There is no tomorrow. I also feel that match play gives the average player a better chance and opens the field to more players."

Match play, Hutchins feels, also arouses more club interest in the players and the tournament. "There is more identification between the contestants and the members." Medal tournaments by their very nature don't create that kind of rapport, he thinks. He admits, however, that even with match play country club interest in tournaments these days is declining rapidly.

Hutchins, who was born in Asheville, N. C., served as caddie master at Woodstock for seven years, first came to Woodstock in 1930 to visit a sister. After a three-year hitch in the U.S. Air Force, Hutchins came back to Woodstock late in 1946. He started working with an exporting firm in New York City but maintained a cottage in Woodstock.

In 1949, July 4, to be exact, Hutchins met a very attractive girl in the Woodstock club swimming pool. She was Sylvia Twitchell, daughter of a prominent architect who had residences in Sarasota, Fla. and Lakeville, Conn. The then Miss Twitchell was in town visiting Woodstock's famed husband and wife artist team of Mishka and Maude Petersham. Shortly thereafter, Miss Twitchell became Mrs. Hutchins.

Woodstock had about 90 members when Hutchins assumed the pro job. It had its share of brilliant, colorful performers. Just to mention a few, the late Allen Waterous, Boyer Gonzales, Walter Seaton, Frank McCahill, Henry Williams, Bill Stifler, August Torres and Fred Allen.

"They were a different breed," Hutchins reminisced. "Head-to-head confrontation was their forte in golf. They would have it no other way. That's the way I think it should always be."

Uresk Pigeon All-American

TILLSON

Raymond Uresk, one of the area's best known pigeon fanciers, has been notified by the All-American Board of Racing Pigeon Fanciers that one of his racing birds placed fifth in the Little Young Birds All-American selections for the year 1969.

Uresk, who is employed as a route driver by Boice Brothers Dairy of Lake Katrine, has been breeding racing pigeons for 17 years and this is his first major winner. However, his birds have been pre-eminent in the Kingston-Ulster County Pigeon Racing competition for many years.

Uresk's loft for two years led the short average speed competition in the Old Bird Races division and also twice led the average speed racing for young birds in the county.

The Tillson loft now numbers around 80 birds. Ray is a hard trainer and prefers to train alone. He flies his own strain and some are highly inbred.

Uresk and his wife, Marge, have four daughters and two sons, ranging in ages from 2 to 19. He says his wife is a great help in the training program.

Qualifying starts Nov. 15 at the Bowlers Club. No reservations are required. Bowlers need only report to the lanes and post their entry fees.

Weatherman Pivotal In the Texas Race

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The weather Nov. 3 conceivably could determine if Texas will send two Republicans to the 92nd Congress next year or keep them split between the two parties as they are now.

The Senate race in Texas between Democrat Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., who ousted veteran Sen. Ralph Yarborough in the primaries, and Republican George Bush has developed into an old-fashioned "horse race."

If the weather is bad on election day, there is likely to be a low voter turnout. If this develops, Republican Bush's chances become brighter.

Both sides, with a week of campaigning left, are convincingly claiming to have the lead, although both admit that the race is very very close.

The same situation, however, does not exist in the Texas governor's race. Incumbent Democrat Preston Smith is generally conceded to have a narrow, but relatively safe margin over challenger Paul Eggers.

Smith got an unexpected boost a couple of weeks ago when a few militant students booed him off the stage at the University of Houston. There was a sympathetic reaction in favor of the governor and Smith's campaign staff said the incident "put us ahead in Houston where we needed it most."

Eggers may again be the victim of another race upstaging his own. Two years ago he ran a credible campaign against Smith, but Texas Republicans put so much more emphasis on the presidential race that Eggers appeared to suffer a good deal in the backwash.

This year the GOP theme has concentrated on winning enough U.S. Senate races to capture control of that body (they need seven more) and Eggers again appears to be taking second fiddle. The Texas Senate race has been branded by the GOP as one of the seven "musts."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew twice has come to Texas to help Bush's senate campaign, and seemed each time to give some attention to Eggers as an afterthought.

Nixon himself is coming to the Lone Star State this week on behalf of Bush. And there is no question that he is much more interested in winning Senate races than he is in governor races.

Both Bush and Eggers are waging low key campaigns and are generalizing on most of the issues. Bush uses the slogan "he can do more," and Eggers tries to sell the idea that Smith is a colorless governor who really is not too highly regarded by the average Texan.

One of Chicago Seven Likes Goodell, Ottinger

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Chicago 7 defendant John Froines, admitting that his endorsement probably does more harm than good, said Monday night that he would like to see either Sen. Charles E. Goodell or Rep. Richard L. Ottinger elected to the U.S. Senate.

In response to a newsman's question, Froiness said 'I'd like to see either Goodell or Ottinger elected in New York just to show the Nixon and Agnew administration they can't get away with loose and dangerous rhetoric.

'I don't like to go around endorsing candidates because I'm not really sure that it helps them," Froines said before stating his preference for the two over Conservative candidate James L. Buckley. "In fact, I think it probably hurts them."

The question of whom Froines would like to see elected came during a discussion of how young people could work for reform within the system.

Both Froines and Rennie Davis, another defendant, later addressed a crowd of 700 at Syracuse University's Hendricks Chapel.

Froines told the crowd "students must become comrades in arms" to work for the freeing of imprisoned Black Panther leader Bobby Seale.

"We're not talking about support for Bobby Seale any longer," Froines said. "We're saying we must use any means necessary to free him."

Davis called on student groups to draw up treaty proposals for submission to the North Vietnamese by anti-war delegates. He said such delegates would negotiate a treaty to end the war and ask President Nixon to accept such a treaty or face a large demonstration in Washington, D. C., in early May.

"We will issue an ultimatum to the administration in Washington that if the war is not stopped by May 1 then we will stop the United States government," Davis said.

"Students from all over the country will drive to Shirley Highway, the main road to the Pentagon, and have our cars suddenly break down," Davis said. "We should prepare to jam every major highway in Washington, D.C., by May 3."

Murder Suspect Denies Charges

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — The bearded young man accused of murdering five persons at a luxurious hilltop mansion denies doing it, public defender James Jackson says.

Jackson, court-appointed to defend John Linley Frazier, said at a news conference Monday his client has told him he did not kill the victims and didn't know them.

Frazier, 24, was arrested last Friday as he slept in a dilapidated cowshed where he lived—less than a half mile from the mansion where four days earlier five people were found shot dead and thrown into a swimming pool.

The victims were Dr. Victor Ohta, 45, his wife, Virginia, 43, their sons Derrick, 12, and Taggart, 11 and his secretary Dorothy Cadwallader 38.

Jackson said Frazier's actions "are not like those of a normal person ... He does not understand the gas chamber. And he does not know right from wrong."

The attorney said Frazier's personality "changed radically" after an auto accident last May in which he suffered a head injury.

One person, described as a close friend, told a newsman that Frazier was "a fairly straight family-oriented sort of a guy" until about May, when he quit his job as an auto mechanic and "turned almost overnight into another wired-up hippie."

He separated from his wife of four years a short time later.

Jackson said he had no immediate plans to change Frazier's "not guilty" plea to a plea of insanity because he feels the evidence is all circumstantial.

But Jackson said David Marlow, former chief of the University of California psychology department on the Santa Cruz campus, had talked to Frazier four times and "is expected to testify that Frzier is not mentally competent."

19-Year-Old Runaway Thought Manson Was Christ

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A tall, gangling runaway from his home in Texas was 19 when he met Charles Manson. He thought that very first day the hippie leader was Jesus Christ.

Bruce Poston, now 21, testified at the Tate murder trial Monday that Manson later told the whole "family" he was Christ and had died for them on the cross.

Poston lived with Manson and his young men and women from June, 1968, to late 1969. The prosecution called him to testify about the hold Manson had on his followers.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi revealed the state would wind up presentation of its case in about a week. The defense case is expected to last at least a month with Manson probably taking the stand near the end.

Manson was in the courtroom, Monday, clean shaved, his hair trimmed and tied in a pony tail. He behaved calmly, as did the three female codefendants, Leslie Van Houten, Patricia Krenwinkel and Susan Atkins.

Poston said he first met Manson in Los Angeles in 1968 not long after leaving his home in Texas with another young man. On that first day his friend bowed down and kissed Manson's feet. Poston said he was under the influence of LSD at the time and decided on the spot Manson was Christ.

The witness said he had no place to go and asked Manson if he could join up with him that Manson asked him whether he could "make love to a girl in front of 25 people."

Poston said he told him he thought he could but admitted later in his testimony that he never made love to any of the "family" girls during the entire time he lived with them.

On a number of occasions Manson spoke of a black-white conflict to the death with the "family" members hiding out in the desert, Poston said. He said Manson predicted 144,000 persons would join the clan in its hideout and then take over ruling the country.

Neel, Alfven Get Nobel Prize For Physics

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The Swedish Academy of Sciences today awarded a Frenchman and a Swede the 1970 Nobel Prize for physics.

The $78,400 award went to Prof. Louis Eugene Neel, 65, of France and Prof. Hannes Olaf Alfven, 62, of Sweden.

The Nobel Prize for Chemistry, the last of the Nobel Awards to be made this year, will be announced later today.

Alfven, born in Uppsala, Sweden, currently is teaching at the University of California in San Diego. He also is a professor of theoretical physics at the Stockholm University of Technology.

He won for "fundamental work and discoveries in magneto-hydrodynamics with fruitful applications in different parts of plasma physics."

Neel, a professor at the University of Grenoble, France, was cited for "fundamental work and discoveries concerning antiferromagnetism and ferromagnetism which have led to important applications in solid state physics," the academy announcement said.

Dear Abby

Should Know Facts

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A young mother complained that her mother-in-law always introduced her and her children, who were still toddlers, as "my daughter-in-law and her two adopted children." The young mother was resentful and you agreed that she had a right to be. I think you are both wrong.

It is never too soon to let children know that they are adopted. They should hear the word "adopted" long before they even know what the word means so they'll grow up knowing that they are adopted.

I still remember when I was 8, running home from school, crying because someone told me I was adopted. I begged my mother to tell me it wasn't true. She assured me it wasn't! When I was 12, I heard that story again, and again I asked my mother if it was true. Again she swore it wasn't. Not until I was 24 and about to be married did my mother tell me the truth, and even then it was a terrible shock.

Please retract your statement, Abby. That mother in law was wise to have introduced the children as "adopted."

DEAR MRS. L.: I agree, it is never too soon to tell children they are adopted, but I think the parents should tell them, and having once been told, unless it is said with obvious pride, it's not necessary to include the word "adopted" in every introduction. From the young mother's letter, I assumed that "pride" was lacking. She could have been mistaken. And so could I. Thank you for making a valid point.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am not even sure how to word this, but I will do my best. There are six couples of us who go around together. We are all in our middle thirties, and we all like to dance. There is no hanky panky in our crowd. We're all satisfied with our own husbands and we don't fool around.

There is one man in our group, who is really a nice person but when he dances, he holds his partner extremely tight and close. It's not only the tightness and closeness, but he gets so intimate when he dances — it's downright indecent. I just hate to dance with him. I keep pulling away and struggling the whole time.

At first I thought he danced that way only with me, but I noticed another girl having the same trouble with him. Finally, a few of us started talking and it turns out he dances that way with all of us. Abby, is it possible that he isn't aware of what he is doing? His wife is a lovely person, and I'm sure she doesn't know the way he dances with us. Can this problem be solved without hurting his feelings?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Why all the pussyfooting around? It's a pretty safe bet that this man is aware of what he is doing. When he asks you to dance, tell him no — you don't care for his style of dancing. He'll get the message. And don't worry about hurting his "feelings." I have an idea he can look after himself.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have never written a letter to you before but I think the following might interest you and some of your readers:

Yesterday was an old man's birthday. He was 91. He awakened earlier than usual, bathed, shaved and put on his best clothes. Surely they would come today, he thought.

He wouldn't take his daily walk to the gas station to visit with the old-timers of the community because he wanted to be right here when they came.

He sat on the front porch with a clear view of the road so he could see them coming. Surely they would come today.

He'd skip his noon nap that day, because he wanted to be up when they came.

He has six children. Two of his daughters and their married children live within a few miles. They hadn't been to see him for such a long time, and today was his birthday. Surely they would come.

At supper time, when a small cake and ice cream was served, he wondered if perhaps he shouldn't wait and have dessert with "them" when they came.

Night time came, and he went to his room and got ready for bed, and his last words before turning out his lights were, "promise to wake me when they come." It was his birthday and he was 91.

A DAUGHTER IN LAW

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A strange and unusual day, especially in your relations with other persons. You would be wise to do nothing startling or dramatic, but if such conditions do arise, accept whatever opportunity is presented. Take advantage so you can have a more exciting relationship in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pay particular attention to what associates are doing since this affects you vitally. Take any situations that arise suddenly in your stride. Do some serious thinking about whatever is of a romantic nature.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improving whatever job you are doing is easy now. Make sure to listen carefully to what co-workers have to suggest. Take necessary steps to improve your health. Have more vitality in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have social invitations that should be accepted today although you hardly think you will have a good time or benefit from them at first. They develop into something very good for you. Show kindness to others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take particular care you do not annoy anyone at home, especially by being sarcastic. Get home fixed up so that you and others are more pleased. You need not spend too much money for such.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to see others, particulary if you show that you can cooperate. Shop for items that enhance your appearance. Take a friend along with you and make it a delightful hour or two.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Adding particular touches to home can make it more charming and valuable as well. If you cut down on extravangances, you can have more money needed later on. They give you little pleasure, anyway.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take the tiime to make yourself more attractive and charming so that others will be more attracted to you. Then off to the social where you make fine impression. Thoughtfulness and kindness toward others bring fine results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Investigating what is puzzling to you at this time can bring fine results because of the unusual things that turn up. Evening is fine for romance. Play the game fair with everyone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal day to be with fascinating people you know so that there can be a fine, mutual rapport. Try to decide what you really want out of life. Then start taking right steps in such directions.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

RUNNING OVER: (Comment) Lots of kids write you about wanting to run away. Let me tell them my story.

When I was 15 — that was two years ago — I started running away, and did it about once every couple of months.

Every time I was caught and brought back home. That is, until four months ago.

That time I ran away and nobody came after me. They had given up.

I stayed away three months. I got mighty lonesome, and a month ago I came home.

It was the best decision I ever made. My parents took me back and trust me now. I have a job, and I don't have the smallest urge to run away again.

— Cured in New York City

(A.) Thank you for an experience story that will help many Teen Forum readers. Boys and girls who run away from problems at home run headlong into bigger problems.

DEVOTED: (Q.) I work as a candy striper in a hospital.

I really love the work and the patients I meet. I get to be such good friends with some of them that sometimes I cry when they go home. I miss them for days. What can I do?

— Miserable in Connecticut

(A.) A candy striper needs to love people and want to serve them. You have proved you do.

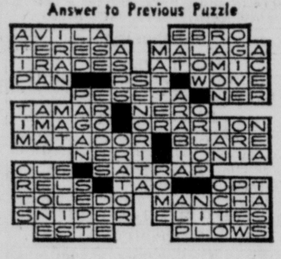

You also need to look ahead instead of into the past. There will always be new friends to look forward to — in your work, your schooling, your play, wherever you go. Everyone you meet will add to you, and you will add to everyone you meet.

So when a patient leaves be glad, not sad. Both of you have gained. Look forward to your next friend.

Keep Hot Hand, ABC Advised

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —If I were a top ABC-TV executive, I think I'd gamble with pro basketball games to replace the Monday night pro football contests when the gridiron season is over.

As is widely known by now, the Monday football games have done well in the ratings, particularly when compared with the other new prime time ABC-TV series, which have been a near-total washout.

The way I understand it, ABC-TV has generally been planning to come in at midseason with, say movies again, or some other regular entertainment, to fill up the Monday schedule when pro footbal is gone.

Well, this might be safe, of course. Movies usually get a halfway decent rating. But this kind of thinking is as unattractively cautious as a gambler who cashes in when he has a hot hand going.

ABC-TV has a hot hand in the concept of the elongated sports weekend—the Monday night games. It is the only new series that really has people talking this season. ABC-TV hasn't a chance in the world to win Monday nights anyway, against the likes of "Gunsmoke" and "Laugh-In," but it does have the chance to keep the spotlight.

ABC-TV has nothing to lose on Mondays. But it might have much to gain if it could develop a national habit of a year-round Monday night sports attraction on the network.

Pro basketball ratings in prime time have not been overly impressive in the past, but such contests have been infrequently tried in network night-time schedules. The idea needs practice.

There is little question that pro basketball, particularly because of television, has become enormously popular—one of the fastest-growing sports attractions in the nation.

Furthermore, there now are individual stars that are genuine video draws—from Lew Alcindor to Jerry West to Willis Reed. Even such rookies as Pete Maravich and Calvin Murphy are crowd pleasers.

What, really, has ABC-TV got to lose when you consider the ratings disappointment of its new-season shows? For example, in the national ratings for the two weeks ending Oct. 11, six hours of new ABC-TV series —"The Immortal," "Dan August," "The Young Rebels," "The Young Lawyers," "The Most Deadly Game" and "Matt Lincoln — finished from 82nd to 87th in the rankings. Virtually all the programs below them—and there weren't many — were news, public affairs and talk shows.

Sports has long been ABC-TV's chief strength in the three-network competition. When a technician pointing a camera at a sports event can get ratings equal to, or better than, whole groups of film creators who spend enormous sums of money for standard shows, it is simple common sense to pay attention to the message implied.

Ifida Champ Wins Decisive Battle

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The meeting of the Ifida Club was called to order. East gained the floor and remarked, "Ifida played the six of hearts instead ace at trick one, we would have had no trouble beating South's three no-trump."

"Point of order," bellowed South. "I did go down at three no-trump anyway. Ifida only known that West held both aces. I would have been all right."

"Ifida been there," said the chairman, "I could settle this right now. South may describe the full play."

South resumed. "East covered dummy's king with his ace, taking the first trick. His jack of hearts took the second trick and he continued with the six-spot. I was in with the 10 and led a diamond to dummy's jack. I continued diamonds. West, who had dropped the five of spades on the third heart, held off his diamond ace until the third round and shifted to the nine of clubs. I had shed dummy's deuce of spades on the third diamond.

"As I said earlier, ifida known where the ace of spades was. I would have led my queen of spades and made my contract, but I didn't know about that or about the 4-2 break in clubs. I didn't even know where the queen of clubs was. In fact, I didn't know anything except that four club tricks would give me my contract.

"I cashed my last two diamonds, discarding spades from dummy. Led a club to dummy's king and stopped for final study. Ifida known where the cards were, I could have end-played West with the ace of spades but I led a third club and West set me with the spade ace and club queen."

"Meeting adjourned," ordered the chairman. "South wins the title of 'Ifida' of the month."

Lindsay Raps Fear Tactics

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay has charged that President Nixon is personally accountable for introducing the tactics of fear into campaign efforts to eliminate his political foes.

The President's 1970 political strategy "has spread a cloud of suspicion and mistrust over our whole nation,' ' Lindsay said Monday night at the Family of Man dinner at the New York Hilton Hotel.

"This is one of the few campaigns in memory in which men apparently seek not merely to defeat their opponents but literally to eliminate them from our public life," the mayor said.

Lindsay, a registered Republican, accused the Republican President and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew of abandoning party principles to claim "that opposition to their policies somehow is an incitement to unrest and violence."

"It is the voice of national leadership—backed by writers, researchers and senior advisers from the White House and by the President of the United States," he said. "It strangely echoes the frightening voice of the fifties—when 'soft on communism' was the all-purpose weapon."

Lindsay, who has repeatedly denied rumors that he might switch his party affiliation, declared: "I believe that America and the Republican party traditionally stand for honorable goals honorably sought.

"But when the President and his lieutenants tell us to be afraid, when they pretend that respected candidates condone violence—as though Weathermen were running in this election—then they are deserting the essential principles of both country and party."

The mayor defended by name five liberal Democrats and one liberal Republican who, he said, were being unjustly attacked. They were Democratic Sens. Albert Gore of Tennessee, Vance Hartke of Indiana and Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts; the Rev. Joseph Duffey, Democratic candidate for senator from Connecticut; Sen. Ralph Yarborough, who lost in the Texas Democratic primary, and Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York, whom Lindsay has previously endorsed.

Lindsay received the "Family of Man" gold medallion which the dinner sponsor, the Council of Churches of the City of New York, gave last year to Nixon.

Others who received awards were Kingman Brewster Jr., president of Yale University, and Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, undersecretary-general of the United Nations.

Eban Questions U.N. Right

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban is questioning the right of the U.N. General Assembly to discuss the Middle East while the issue is before the Security Council.

He raised the question at a news conference Monday, minutes after Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad made the opening speech in the assembly debate. Eban said that in his address to the 127-nation assembly today he would "not take the defensive" but would make new charges.

Riad accused Israel and the United States of collaborating in a policy of deceit and aggression that has blocked peace in the Middle East.

Th Israeli foreign minister called Riad's speech "a violent and dishonorable tirade."

Eban said it is well known that Egypt is shoveling in more arms and equipment, "probably even as we are talking now."

He told the newsmen that assembly debate on the Middle East at this stage might be a violation of the U.N. charter. He added that he would sound out delegation chiefs on what he described as this "dangerous situation."

Eban said as he arrived in New York Sunday that he had not come "in a defensive mood."

The roadblock to negotiations, he charged, was Soviet and Egyptian "violation of the cease-fire standstill."

The chief of Israeli military intelligence, Gen. Aharon Yariv, told a news conference in Tel Aviv that Egypt and the Soviet Union have set up one of the most advanced missile systems in the world in the Suez Canal zone. He estimated that 500 to 600 missiles have been deployed in the zone.

Israel has been boycotting U.N. mediated peace negotiations, charging that Egypt violated the cease-fire by setting up the missile sites.

Eban said the best way to renew the talks would be to restore the situation as it was on Aug. 8, when the 90-day standdown went into effect in the canal zone. He indicated that Israel would like to see the ceasefire extended.

A group of African delegates has drafted a resolution asking Israel to resume talks under mediator Gunnar V. Jarring within two months. An Israel official in Jerusalem said the proposal was unacceptable.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik charged that the United States refused to allow East German officials to pass through American territory so they could see Secretary-General U Thant in his U.N. offices.

"U.S. authorities refuse to let representatives of the German Democratic Republic pass through Kennedy Airport and other U.S. territory to reach the 38th floor and talk with the secretary general," Malik told the U.N.'s main political committee.

He made his charge during a discussion of whether to invite North and South Korea to send observers for the annual debate on the Korean question.

The Philippines presented a resolution to the General Assembly's legal committee calling on governments to take all possible steps to halt aerial hijacking and to provide for punishment or extradition of hijackers.

The resolution, signed by 18 nations, expressed grave concern over the growing number of hijackings and the danger they pose to airline passengers. It also condemns hijackings and particularly the holding of hostages.

Navy Cuts Pacific Aircraft Strength

SAIGON (UPI —The Navy said today it has cut its aircraft carrier strength in the Western Pacific to the pre-Vietnam War level as part of President Nixon's Vietnamization program. Naval sources said the return of one carrier to the United States would not much affect the 7th Fleet's fighting capacity in the war zone.

Communiques from Phnom Penh said Cambodian troops broke up a Viet Cong attack with air strikes 14 miles east of the capital.

The U.S. Command said today in a delayed report a $750,000 GH47 rescue helicopter had been shot down Saturday over the Laotian upper panhandle with loss of one man killed and another missing. Military sources speculated the report was delayed because there had been a considerable search and the missing man may be a prisoner of the Communists.

U.S. spokesmen also reported another wave of massive B52 raids against the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos. Since Oct. 8, the American B52 fleet had dropped at least 15,000 tons of bombs on the supply route.

South Vietnamese spokesmen in Saigon said one man was killed and 48 others injured today in an accidental explosion at an ammunition site 10 miles south of the capital. The blast rattled windows and shook buildings in downtown Saigon.

The U.S. Navy announcement released in Saigon said the number of attack carriers assigned to the 7th Fleet had been cut from four to three with the departure of the Bon Homme Richard, which sailed for the United States 10 days ago.

The reduction was "in line with the President's plan to reduce U.S. forces in Southeast Asia as the Republic of (South) Vietnam forces become stronger and assume an increasingly greater share of the war," the Navy saidm

A spokesman said that since the 7th Fleet does not operate carriers anywhere else in the Pacific except off Vietnam it still will be possible to keep two carriers off the coast most of the time, with a total of up to 180 planes.

Cambodian field reports said the government troops broke up the Communist assault east of Phnom Penh but gave no casualties figures.

In Phnom Penh, Maj. Am Rong, the Cambodian military spokesman, said government forces stalled for six weeks at Tang Kauk, 52 miles north of the capital, were about to take the offensive again.

Agnew Forecasts Southern Jurist If . . .

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, declaring it is "high time to stop kicking the South around," promised a Southern appointee to the Supreme Court will be confirmed if just a handful of Senate "radical liberals" are retired in next Tuesday's election.

Campaigning for GOP candidates in North and South Carolina Monday, Agnew said the South has been discriminated against by Congress and by the news media and added. "Its high time to stop kicking the South around."

If the voters will retire 'just a handful of those radical liberals," he said, "we'll have a strict constructionist from the South on that Supreme Court whether (Sens.) Birch Bayh and Ted Kennedy like it or not.

"Richard Nixon remains determined to achieve a better ideological and geographical balance on the Supreme Court," Agnew said. "His resolution to achieve that balance will never waver, despite those radical liberals who still control the Senate."

More than 7,000 Republicans who gathered for a rally on behalf of North Carolina's Republican congressional hopefuls cheered as Agnew said "just as second-class citizens are to be second-class no more, so also there will be no more second-class states while Richard Nixon is in the White House — promise you that."

Agnew predicted Rep. Albert Watson, R-S.C. would be elected governor of South Carolina next week and that Republicans would gain at least half of the seats on the North Carolina congressional delegation.

Agnew, described by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., as the greatest "American since John C. Calhoun and Robert E. Lee," earlier Monday addressed 6,000 persons in the Greenville, S.C., Memorial Auditorium. The crowd interrupted Agnew 22 times with applause and jumped to its feet when he said the Nixon administration will continue to support the neighborhood school concept.

"We flatly oppose compulsory busing solely for racial balance," he said. "We wholeheartedly believe in the neighborhood school concept and there this administration takes our stand."

Escape Burning 747 Jumbo Jet

LONDON (AP) — A Pan American 747 jumbo jet caught fire two minutes after landing today, sending 89 passengers sliding down escape chutes.

Several passengers suffered minor cuts and bruises. Two fainted when they hit the concrete, but whisky revived them.

Airport firemen quickly extinguished the flames with foam spray.

The Boeing 747 was ending a direct flight from Los Angeles to London.

Levitt Stands for Longevity

KINGSTON, Arthur Levitt, the Democratic candidate for state comptroller, already holds the New York State record for service in that office but he's on the ballot again, seeking his fifth term.

Levitt, rounding out 16 years in office, did not hesitate when asked to explain his increasing popularity with the voters. He defeated Charles Lanigan (now the State Republican chairman) by 1,600,000 votes in 1966. "I consider myself a representative of the people," he said, at an interview at the Freeman offices last week.

"I am the guardian of the public money. I do not consider myself a representative of a political party or the governor or the legislature. I do represent the people of the state of New York whose interests are my daily concern. Mine is really a nonpartisan office. This has been historically true and the people or the state recognize it."

The Brooklyn attorney had been president of the New York City Board of Education when Averill Harriman asked him to join the Democratic ticket and run for comptroller in 1954. Levitt was reelected in the Rockefeller victory in 1958 and has been reelected ever since.

Levitt has opposed a number of Rockefeller fiscal programs, the sales tax, which he termed regressive, the state lottery, which he opposed on "moral grounds" and most recently, the so-called Albany Mall which he has labeled ill advised, ill timed and extravagant. "I've opposed the mall since its inception," he told The Freeman, "because of the huge cost and because there are other projects which should have a higher priority such as the fight against air and water pollution."

But then Levitt adds, "Since we are involved I think it's my job to minimize the cost to the taxpayer as much as possible. We have saved millions of dollars by reducing the claims of contractors." Levitt passes on those claims as the state's chief fiscal officer.

Levitt is also involved with floating the state's bonds and said that only two weeks ago he personally negotiated for $120,000,000 in bonds. "In negotiations of that type," he says, "a fraction of a percentage point becomes a matter of great importance."

Levitt is also the administrator of the $4 billion state retirement system which he says grows at a rate of $400 million a year. He invests that money with the aim of getting the highest interest rate.

"The job (of comptroller) is one of extreme responsibility," Levitt says. "One has to manage audits, have a variety of skills in investing, know the bond market and be an expert in cash management."

Levitt for the most part, ignored his Republican opponent, Edward Regan, except to ask, "What experience does he have that qualifies him for this job?

Regan: The Bold Challenger

EDWARD V. REGAN

KINGSTON One of the fastest starts in an admittedly uphill Republican race for the office of Comptroller of New York State was made early in this year's election campaign by Edward V. (Ned) Regan of Buffalo.

Regan seeks to unseat the popular Democratic vote-getter Arthur Levitt, who is campaigning for a fifth term.

An uphill race is nothing new to Regan however for in 1965 he upset the applecart when he won the councilman-at-large seat in Buffalo against a two-to-one Democratic enrollement.

Designated by the Republican State Committee meeting in Rochester April 7, Regan took off almost immediately on the campaign trail hitting all 62 counties including Saugerties in Ulster County by early September.

Determined to redefine the office of the State Comptroller in simple and contemporary terms, Regan, an energetic lawyer-businessman calls first for "more frequent local government audits and more clarity in the matter in which they are presented to the public and the press."

Detailing his broad commitment to the office in terms of 1970, the University of Buffalo law school graduate said. "I am in this campaign to win and I am going to do it by exposing the facts about the office.

"People do not know what the state comptroller does. The 16-year incumbent (Levitt) must take the responsiblity for this.

Regan charged that "since 1954 the people and the press of this state haven't been told about the fiscal responsibilities and potential powers of the office.

Born in Plainfield, N.J., his mother's family is from the New York City area and his father's family comes from Oswego.

In 1935, Regan moved with his parents to Utica and later to Buffalo in 1944.

He graduated from Hobart College in Geneva in 1952 and was serving as a Navy Intelligence officer in 1953 when his father died. He then returned to civilian life to take charge of family affairs.

Fish Goes for 2nd Term

HAMILTON FISH Jr.

Although just completing his first year term as congressman Republican Hamilton Fish Jr. was no stranger of Capitol Hill in Washington even before he was elected in 1968.

U.S. vice consul in 1951-53, Fish, is a fifth generation congressman, whose father left the hill in 1945. The young Millbrook lawyer is the fourth member of his family with the same name to capture the seat. His great-grandfather was a Whig in Congress in the 1840's and governor of New York State as well as secretary of state. Fish now seeks a second term and is being opposed by Democrat John J. Greaney of East Durham.

A proponent of most of President Nixon's policies, Fish has kept his pledge to open three congressional offices in the 28th District. With reapportionment now enlarging his district, he again pledges a continuation of his personal contacts with constituents in the Ulster, Dutchess, Greene, Schoharie and Columbia Counties and also in the newly added counties of western Montgomery, Otsego, Delaware and Sullvian.

He has supported and states he will continue to support, "our successful policy of Vietnamization and troop withdrawals, with my goal the ending of U.S. combat in South Vietnam." He said he applauds the firm position taken by the United States, which he said to date has avoided an enlargement of the conflict in Jordon.

Regarding drug abuse and crime, Fish, widower and father of four children, claims the 91st Congress has made significant progress in two areas of vital concern to all Americans — drug abuse and the challenge of organized crime.

Fish co-sponsored the House-passed Drug Abuse Education Control Act of 1969 and strongly supported the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention Control Act of 1970.

Also, the House-passed Omnibus Crime and Safe Streets amendments which Fish sponsored earmarked $3.15 billion for local law enforcement.

The Millbrook lawyer's Judicial Committee, with his support, recently reported out the Crime Control Act of 1970.

On the subject of inflation, Fish says his specific legislative goals for the 92nd Congress call for avoiding a resurgence of inflationary pressures which cheapen money and harm those defenseless against inflation.

He would establish priorities to live within the federal budget meeting social needs while curtailing non-essential spending, phasing our farm subsidies and leveling off space appropriations.

He would also implement environmental legislative goals by enacting the package of legislation for quality of environment with full funding of these measures: municipal waste treatment facilities, environment financing authority, solid waste disposal proposals.

A Harvard graduate who received his law degree from New York University, Fish, in addition to being vice-counsul in Ireland, was attorney with the New York Assembly Judiciary Committee in 1961.

Greaney: 'For People'

The theme of Democratic congressional candidate John J. Greaney's campaign is one of understanding the problems of the people.

The East Durham father of 13 children, campaigning to unseat Republican Hamilton Fish Jr., consistently tells his audiences that as the head of such a large household, he knows what it is to fight inflation and taxes.

On this question he states emphatically that "Unemployment and high interest rates are not the answer."

"Our tax law," he adds, people contribute their fair share but none are oppressed; the necessity of moonlighting and the working of wives must be removed.

A native of New Hampshire, where he was born in 1922, Greaney was the oldest of five children. He moved to New York State where he was educated in public and private schools and upon graduation enlisted in the United States Marines serving in World War II in the Pacific and China theatres.

Honorably discharged in 1946, he enrolled in St. John's University where he majored in psychology and pre-law.

During the Korean War period, he served as a speical agent with the officer of Naval Intelligence.

If elected, he states, "I will be grateful and inspired . . . grateful to my many local supporters from all walks of life and from every political persuasion and, of course, to my wonderful family for their patience and assistance during this arduous campaign.

He will be inspired, he said, "by the knowledge that his election in the new nine county 28th Congressional District was the result of voters acceptance of the major theme of his campign — that all Americans must be brought together."

Hoffman for Nixon

Ulster County Conservative Party Chairman Harry S. Hoffman Jr. is basing his congressional candidacy on support of President Richard M. Nixon's programs and policies which he feels are an effort "to correct the defects in our society brought on by 35 years of permissive liberalism."

The 45-year-old Saugerties resident is seeking the post on the Conservative line and is opposing the incumbent Republican Hamilton Fish Jr. and the Democratic candidate John J. Greaney.

HARRY S. HOFFMAN

A former member of the Saugerties School Board of Education and the father of six, Hoffman feels the powers of the president as commander-in-chief should not be impaired as would, he says, have happened under the Cooper-Church Amendment supported by Fish. "The president must have the necessary resources to satisfactorily wage the Cold War," Hoffman said.

The only exception the IBM senior engineer takes to President Nixon's programs is in the area of welfare which Hoffman feels has been irretrievably corrupted by the present Congress.

"Those disagreeing with the president," Hoffman states, "must seek their desired changes through the elective process rather than taking to the streets and infringing on the rights of others by such tactics as preventing their attendance at classes in our schools.

A graduate of Case Western Reserve University, class of 1947, he is a Navy veteran of World War II and serves on the executive board of Rip Van Winkle Council of Boy Scouts of America.

Nirenberg's Goal- Get Tough Policy

A "get tough approach to drugs" has been the main theme of the candidacy of Democratic candidate for district attorney, Alex J. Nirenberg.

The Ellenville attorney, has been practising law for 15 years and is a civic leader interested in youth problems. He is a local member of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency and has had experience in the field of criminal law.

He is a member of the New York State Bar Association and the Ulster County Bar Association and serves on its criminal law committee.

Nirenberg says he has practised criminal law in the federal courts and has in 15 years handled about 3,000 cases including 300 of a criminal nature.

A town justice for years, he presently serves as an arbitor for the American Arbitration Society and was a former special assistant attorney general.

Nirenberg, father of three sons, resides with his wife, Sandy in Ellenville. He is a graduate of St. John's University Law School.

He recently founded the Citizen Protection Committee, a volunteer organization to protect senior citizens and housewives from consumer frauds.

Speaking on the issues, Nirenberg said he feels there must be a complete overhaul of the district attorney's office, so that it can handle efficiently the main problems that face the people of Ulster County today.

First and foremost, he said is the drug problem. Nirenberg said that he feels that reduction of charges in all cases should require the approval of the police and the victim of the crime.

He would like to see members of organized crime prosecuted as well as the victims of the drug scene.

ALEX J. NIRENBERG

Vogt Cites Record In Campaign for DA

Basing his campaign on his ten years of experience as assistant district attorney of Ulster County, Republican-Conservative candidate for district attorney, Francis J. Vogt has taken strong positions on such issues as drugs, courts and crime and the role of the district attorney's office. He is being opposed in his bid to fill the seat being vacated by District Attorney Joseph P. Toracca by Democrat candidate Alex J. Nirenberg.

Vogt states, "I am of the opinion that drug violations should carry a minimum as well as the presently prescribed maximum sentence and that the judge should be permitted to exercise sentencing discretion within those limits.

"I am generally opposed to mandatory jail sentences however, since it takes away from the presiding judge the power to tailor the punishment to fit the crime."

Vogt said that in many instances where felonies are committed it is desirable for both society and the defendent that a suspended sentence be imposed. He added, though, that he would make an exception where narcotics violations are involved due to the scope of the problem which is becoming more serious every day.

The World War II Navy veteran said he would also like to see a modification of the present laws relating to search and seizure and give police officers broader powers to search motor vehicles and persons previously convicted of narcotic violations.

A former special agent for the FBI, Vogt said he advocates revising the narcotics law to make the sale of LSD as serious a violation as the sale of a narcotic drug. The medical evidence, he advised, regards LSD's dangerous effects on the user as much more substantial than that available with respect to marijuana.

Local Law 2 in Marbletown asks: Should the term of office of town superintendent of highways be four years?

In the Town of Rochester, Local Law 2 asks: Should the term of office for town clerk be four years?

Presently in both towns, the offices of clerk and highway superintendent run two years each.

Dutchess Has Justice Posts

NORTHERN DUTCHESS

The office of Town Justice is up for election in Red Hook and Milan Nov. 3, but there is no contest in Red Hook.

Both offices were temporarily filled due to deaths last January of Red Hook Judge Frank B. Martin and Milan Judge Leonard Heman.

Current Republican appointee Albert Trezza is running unopposed for the Red Hook post. He also serves as police justice for the Villages of Red Hook and Tivoli. Trezza is an attorney with a Poughkeepsie firm, and is a former assistant district attorney.

The Milan contest pits incumbent Republican appointee Edward Rancich against Democrat Herbert Swank.

Rolison Seeks Third Term

State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr., Republican with Conservative backing representing Ulster and Dutchess, is seeking his third consecutive two-year term in office.

He is a practicing attorney with the firm of Frederick and Rolison, Poughkeepsie, receiving his legal training at Providence College and Fordham University School of Law.

The senator is Chairman of the Senate Standing Committee on Commerce and Navigation, is Chairman of the Senate Codes Subcommittee on the Criminal Procedure Law, and is on committees on motor vehicles, agriculture, social services, crime and correction, public utilities, and is a member of the joint legislative committees on conservation and natural cooperation, and corporation law.

He was born in Madison, N. J. and lives at 150 Kingwood Park, Poughkeepsie with his wife Barbara and two school-aged children.

His attitude toward home rule is basic in many stances, and is best illustrated by a statement to The Freeman. "I have strongly supported in the past, and will continue to do so, the necessity of strengthening the power of local governments to deal effectively with their problems. In this regard, the state can be most helpful by giving to local governments the necessary financing and powers to adequately do the job."

And again, "I have constantly opposed efforts to dictate to local governments and force them to undertake programs which they do not wish and cannot afford." He uses as an example the recent legislation to restrict the power of the Pure Waters Authority to use landfill sites for Westchester County in Ulster and Dutchess Counties without the consent of the local counties or municipalities.

On federal revenue-sharing, he notes that New York State receives only five cents back on every dollar it sends to Washington and feels that better distribution is "imperative."

On the codes committee on criminal procedure law, Rolison aided a provision to expand the arrest powers of the police.

Recommendations on drug abuse control include increased penalties for pushers of hard core narcotics, the establishment of a special narcotics court, and the proposal of legislation requiring that these cases be brought to trial within 60 days of arrest and bail procedures be tightened.

Rolison notes that he has been active in helping to secure funds and facilities for Ulster County, including: $2.5 million for the purchase of Minnewaska State Park; $115,000 for recreational facilities at Bristol Park; $425,000 for snow-making machine at Belleayre.

And he claims to have applied "constant presdure" to the Department of transportation for Route 209 reconstruction.

Some other recent proposals include plans to introduce legislation designed to exempt interest on savings accounts as taxable income for those individuals 65 or over; and a plan that will reward local school districts for upgrading standards in reading, writing, and mathematics.

Lenefsky Spells It Out

David Lenefsky is the Democratic candidate for State Senator from the 38th District, Ulster-Dutchess Counties.

He lives with his wife Barbara and a two-year-old child in West Shokan, and has been a resident of Ulster County for the past five years, of his 32.

He has kept primarily to the issues, with occasional side trips attacking the incumbent Jay Rolison's legislative record.

And the big issues which have been stressed are an alleged favoritism by the state administration and legislators for big business over the small businessman and individual taxpayer; a tighter control on government fiscal policies through freezing mounting bureacracy and putting all bond resolutions before the public for voting.

On other issues: He advocates relieveing the need for public employee strikes by paying them more. He has noted that a sheriff's deputy in Ulster County earns base salary of $4,800 a year.

Educationally, Lenefsky is in favor of BOCES-type program expansion as a real answer to unemployment and rising welfare costs. This would increase the skilled work force.

DAVID LENEFSKY

Lenefsky has stressed the need for a "full time legislator" in Albany, saying that he could live on the $18,000 annual salary. And he has asked that the State Senate be convened for a far greater period of time than the three to four months now in practice.

To support this statement, he said that 14,000 pieces of legislation were introduced last session and that no one had the time to even read them all. And no re-convention meant that the governor's veto was final for the session.

On the drug abuse question, Lenefsky has said that a greater portion of the available money should be spent on narcotics education.

On income taxes, Lenefsky has called for New York State to modify its special treatment for capital gains. "It is difficult to see today why someone who invests in stocks and makes $10,000 should pay less than someone who works all year for $10,000," he commented. "If anything, the reverse should be true."

In defining the job of a state senator Lenefsky has outlined step one as being "adoption of state legislation which advances the interests of Dutchess and Ulster citizens." Two, "provide information to citizens of Dutchess and Ulster about the important unresolved problems."

Three, "become involved in community affairs" in his area and four, "be available to the citizens."

Rocky After Record Breaker

KINGSTON

It was President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who first brought Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller into public service when he appointed him coordinator of Inter-American Affairs in 1940.

Since then, the Republican governor, who seeks reelection to his fourth term, has piled up an impressive amount of accomplishments including further appointments by former President Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lyndon B. Johnson and former New York State Gov. Averill Harriman. At the request of President Richard Nixon, he undertook a special fact-finding mission to Latin America in the Spring of 1969.

Today, his campaign, based wholly upon the governor's accomplishments during his term of office, points out that he is chairman of the National Governor's Conference Committee on Human Resources, that he has been appointed by President Nixon to the National Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board and that New York State has acheived national prominence in diverse areas.

Rockefeller points to advances in environmental control, education, aid to local government, crime control, economic growth, transportation, health and mental health, social services, consumer protection, housing, public employe relations and the arts.

The establishment in 1970 of a new State Department of Environmental Conservation, as proposed by the governor, added to the state's record of national leadership, Rockefeller said, and centralized the state's attack on every form of pollution.

The Westchesterite a resident of Pontico Hills where he resides with his wife and their two sons, as well as at the Executive Mansion in Albany, also applauds two $100 million bond issues approved by voters for purchase of rapidly disappearing open spaces. That program has been followed by a $400 million effort to develop other outdoor recreation areas. The result has been the acquisition of 375,000 acres of land and development of 43 new state parks.

GOV. ROCKEFELLER

Rockefeller says that under his guidance, direct state aid to primary and secondary education in local communities throughout the state has risen almost $2.4 billion annually. In 1970, a special $28 million program of emergency aid to non-public schools was initiated.

He speaks of state university expansion, of 37 community colleges established during his administration and a $4.2 billion construction program underway on campuses of the state.

Rockefeller also points to the increases in Regents scholarships and fellowships, and the full opportunity program to insure every young man and woman meaningful further education after high school.

Emphasis is also placed on New York State's having enacted a revenue sharing plan under which the state will share 21 per ent of its personal income tax collections with local government. Importance is also placed on Gov. Rockefeller's 1970 request that resulted in an organized crime task force, headed by a statewide prosecutor, created to investigate and prosecute organized crime that cuts across county lines.

Also in 1970, the governor called for an all-out war on drugs with the total approach involving $200 million in state loans for creating local treatment centers, $65 million in state aid for supporting local drug problems, a massive education program, a methadone maintenance program and an exhaustive evaluation on drug laws and the drug culture by a temporary state commission.

Earlier in 1967, the State Narcotic Addicition Control Commission had been created as the first state agency of its type in the nation. It maintains programs with 14,000 addicts under care and treatment.

Citing the record further, Rockefeller tells of his administration having established the largest medical care program in the nation, of increasing loan funds available to hospitals, of what he calls unparalleled advances in programs for the mentally ill and the mantally retarded.

The governor's continued concern with consumer protection is reflected in the creation of a board to represent consumer interests and in the cultural life in the state through the Council on the Arts.

Goldberg Cites Distinguished Record

KINGSTON

Arthur J. Goldberg has been close to the periphy of power in Washington but now he wants to run the whole show, in Albany, as New York State governor.

Goldberg brings to the campaign a distinguished record of accomplishment in the past ten years. President John F. Kennedy appointed him as his secretary of labor in April of 1961. He served for 18 months and was then appointed to the United States Supreme Court by President Kennedy on Oct. 1, 1962.

The President said at the time of Goldberg's appointment, that the new justice had "an enviable record of accomplishment, the bar and his character, temperament and ability superbly qualified him for service on the court."

With the death of Adlai Stevenson in the summer of 1965 Goldberg was appointed by President Johnson as the United States delegate to the United Nations.

His name had been prominently mentioned for the post of United States Senator from New York in 1968 but he refused all overtures. It was again mentioned in late 1969 for senator but again Goldberg was adament against seeking political office. He reversed his field and ran, not for senator, but for governor against the incumbent Nelson Rockefeller seeking an unprecedented fourth term.

Goldberg explained that he was "the only candidate" who could beat Rockefeller in the November runoff. Howard J. Samuels, an upstate industrialist, contested that in a primary this June but was narrowly beaten by Goldberg.

Goldberg also carries the Liberal Party's banner, a designation that has traidionally been worth about 500,000 votes, mostly in the New York City area. Gov. Rockefeller won by about 400,000 votes in 1966 but the Democratic caniddate, Frank O'Connor, did not have the Liberal designation. It went to Franklin Roosevelt Jr.

ARTHUR J. GOLDBERG

Goldberg was born in Chicago on Aug. 8, 1908, the son of poor Russian emigrants. His father died when Goldberg was 12 years old and the future candidate began working as a delivery boy shortly after.

He finished high school in three and a half years and attended Crane Junior College in the morning, DePaul University in the afternoon and worked in a library at night After two years of such study he entered Northwestern University Law School and graduated in 1929 top man in his class.

After serving in a law firm for a few years, Goldberg branched out into what would become his speciality, labor, representing the American Newspaper Guild which was involved in a strike with the Hearst newspapers in Chicago. He later moved on to be counsel with what was then the CIO.

He became aquainted with the Kennedy Brothers, John and Robert, in the late 1950's a relationship that later lead to his appointment as secretary of labor.

The candidate his attacked the Rockefeller administration on a borad front, blaming his Republican opponent for the drug problem in the state and the increase in crime. He is expected to concentrate his campaign in the New York City area, a traditional Democratic stronghold.

Various polls have been published by both camps, the sum total appearing to be that the race for Governor of New York State will go right down to the wire.

Adams Challenges Both Parties

"Republicans must run on their record, and the Democrats on the theory that they can do better than the GOP," according to Dr. Paul Adams, Conservative Party candidate for governor who calls his opponents "both bad news for New Yorkers."

Adams claims the incumbent Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is "a past master at conning the voters" and that his democratic opponent Arthur Goldberg "doesn't know what he is talking about."

The 53-year old Adams says he isn't conning anyone and he knows what he is talking about.

"I am talking for the taxpayer, law abiding, hard-working citizens of this state."

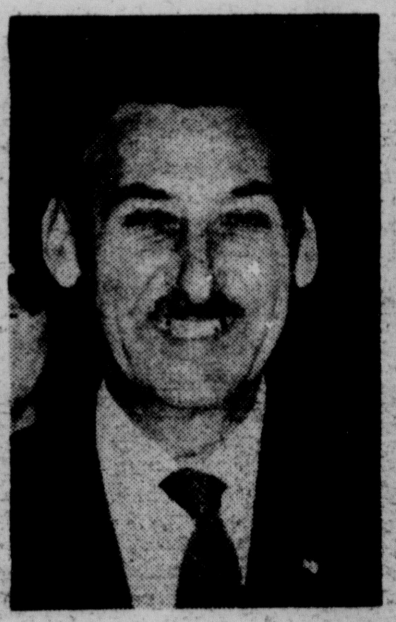

A professor and academic dean at Roberts Wesleyan College, Adams, in speeches around the state, likes to point to a Rockefeller commercial showing a father struggling to understand his son's new math. "As he struggles, the usual soothing voice comes on to explain how much the governor has done for education," he explains.

"Whatever the questionable values of the new math, the old math shows us that the governor has indeed spent an awful lot of money on education. Per pupil cost in New York State are 63 per cent higher than the national average and 58 per cent higher than California's."

Questioning whether taxpayers are getting a full dollar's worth for every dollar spent, Adams claims that over the past 10 years enrollment in New York State schools has increased 28 per cent but that there has been an increase of 49 per cent more in the number of teachers, 53 per cent more instructional staff and 80 per cent more non-teaching personnel.

Adams contends that all you have to do is mention any school problem, and the immediate answer from the educationists — those who run the schools — is to give them more money.

He claims the educators also accuse anyone who states that the schools have already received massive amounts of money of being anti-education and anti-children.

PAUL ADAMS

Born in Natrona Heights, Pa., the former World War II army captain has called for an elected State Board of Regents based on the fact that he feels that there is now no satisfactory way to establish a line of authority in the state's educational system

Speaking with regard to the drug problem, Dr. Adams feels the state should be seeking every possible way to combat it and coordinate its efforts with the federal and local community.

With regard to unrest and problems which arose on New York campuses during the past year, Adams, who has been working for the Conservative Party since 1964, suggests that the real weakness stems from the lack of stern disciplinary action. Claiming that college administrators all too often fail to realize that agitation is brought in from the outside for the purpose of revolution, Dr. Adams says the agitators often admit that the issues raised are inconsequential.

On the subject of bringing police on campus to quell disturbances, the candidate advocates such action, stating that quick and initial moves on the part of administrators would keep small problems from becoming bigger ones.

Another target in the Adams campaign is the Pornography Commission's report which he labels "a blueprint for moral disaster."

Calling on New Yorkers to reject it, Dr. Adams said that he, like most Americans, has been shocked and appalled that a government commission, after spending two years and $2 million could come up with a recommendation to repeal all pornography laws in the United States.

He feels that anti-pornography laws are not founded in ignorance, fear and emotion as the commission asserts, but are rooted in the great good sense and common decency of the vast majority of Americans.

Emphatic that he is not a "token" candidate as Goldberg claims, Adams says his candidacy is genuine and that 1970 looks like a good year for the Conservatives.

Goodell Faces Uphill Battle

KINGSTON

Charles E. Goodell, as the incumbent United States Senator, should have been the odds on favorite for reelection, the rate of return in the U.S. Senate is above 80 per cent.

But it hasn't worked out that way for the man who was appointed to replace the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy by Gov. Rockefeller in 1968. Instead, he's been involved in a bitter campaign between himself, Richard Ottinger, the multi-millionaire Democratic candidate and James L. Buckley, the Conservative who appears to be running strongly, at least in the Upstate areas where Goodell has to score heavily in order to return to Washington this January.

Goodell has billed himself as a man who speaks out on the issues and it has apparently been his speeches against some of President Nixon's policies, particularly the Vietnam War and the ABM issue, that have gotten him in hot water with New York Republicans.

Goodell's elevation to the Senate in 1968 by Rockefeller came as a surprise in some quarters. He was a relatively unknown Congressman from Jamestown who had steered a middle of the road to moderate course during his eight years in the House. Some critics claim that congressional road often veered to the right when Goodell was a congressman but then shifted abruptly to the left when he went to the Senate.

Goodell is a 1948 graduate of Williams College where he was a Phi Beta Kappa and five-letter varsity athelete. He received his bachelor of law degree from Yale University in 1951 and a Yale master's degree in government in 1952. He is a veteran of both World War II and the Korean War.

Goodell headed a Chautaugua County Citizens Committee for Eisenhower in 1956 and rose to county GOP chairman in 1958.

Coincidentally, he got his chance to run for Congress when his predecessor, Daniel A. Reed, died in office at the age of 83 in 1959. Goodell had headed Reed's campaign committee the year before.

He was endorsed by Gov. Rockefeller for reelection at the GOP convention this spring and won the nomination although there were a number of abstentions including that of H. Clark Bell, Ulster County assemblyman and state committeeman.

Goodell's critics have attacked him for failure to support the President and for his attacks on some of the President's policies. Goodell has responded to that criticism by stating that the people of New York expect him to study the issues and think for himself and that he has not always opposed the President. The local record shows that on June 9, 1969, Goodell said this about President Nixon: "The president has swiftly given the American people confidence that he is in command of the decision making process in the White House."

Goodell visited Kingston on Sept. 8 where he addressed the Lions Club at the Gov. Clinton Hotel and later toured Ulster County Community College.

He is seeking a full, six year term in the Senate joining Republican Jacob K. Javits, the state's other Senator, reelected in 1968.

Area Backs Buckley's Candidacy

KINGSTON

If Conservative U.S. Senatorial Candidate James L. Buckley were running only in Dutchess and Ulster County, he could be considered a favorite for election over his two opponents, incumbent Senator Charles E. Goodell (Republican-Liberal) and Richard Ottinger (Democrat).

Prominent area Republicans have endorsed the Conservative candidate who is actually an enrolled Republican.

Buckley has offered his candidacy as an alternative to that of Ottinger and Goodell, both liberals and both of whom have often opposed the policies of the Republican President, Nixon.

Bernard Singer, city Conservative chairman, summed it up this spring when he said, "We're going all out for Jim Buckley. We think we have a good chance to win with him."

Buckley, a 47-year-old attorney, is making his second run for the U.S. Senate. He finished behind Democrat-Liberal Paul O'Dwyer and Republican Jacob K. Javits but polled more than a million votes.

Buckley, in this campaign, has supported President Nixon on a variety of issues including campus unrest and the war in Vietnam. He has attacked his opponents for not supporting the President on key issue. Nixon, has not come out for Buckley but has also not come out for Buckley's Republican opponent, Goodell while at the same time expressing appreciation for Buckley's support of his policies, leading some Buckley backers to believe that the President is actually in favor of the Conservative candidate.

Ulster County's two state officials, Senator Jay P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell have both indicted strong support for Buckley. Both have the Conservative endorsement.

The main thrust of Buckley's campaign seems to be that he offers a choice between Ottinger and Goodell. He says that there is no difference between his opponents. In Kingston, on Sept. 28, Buckley labled his two opponents, "the twins."

That same night, before a mixed crowd of some 500 persons Buckley touches on the highlights of his campaign. He charged that "the twins" were exclusively concerned about the rights of those accused of a crime and that they had lost sight of the equal need to protect the lives of innocent victims of crime.

Rocky's 'Backup' Has Experience

Sometimes referred to as the governor's understudy and the workhorse of the Republican political campaigns in the state, Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, who seeks reelection Nov. 3, has compiled a unique record of service in his 32 years in public office.

The mild-mannered Yonkers lawyer served 20 years in the Assembly where 432 of the bills bearing his name became law—some kind of a record. He has been lieutenant governor, under Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the past 12 years.

As such, Wilson has already served the lieutenant governorship longer than all but one of his predecessors—a fact that has prompted him to remark on occasion, "I've been number two longer than Avis."

"He's never lost an election," an aide said recently, "and he's been in 13 campaigns and knows every nook and cranny in the state."

Identified more with the Conservative wing of the Republican Party, Wilson has a close rapport with party officials, he is the one who has acted as sort of a campaign manager for Rockefeller ever since he introduced him to the GOP heirarchy and nominated him for governor in 1958.

Among Wilson's credits is his writing of the law that created the Higher Education Assistance Corporation and the statute that extended social security benefits to 400,000 state and local government employes.

He was chairman of a Commission on Ethical Standards in Public Service, the agency that recommended the law that now requires local governments to adopt codes of ethics governing employes.

As presiding officer of the Senate, Wilson holds another unique record, a ruling of his has never been appealed, not even during the hectic session in 1965 when the Democrats were in the majority.

One of the highpoints of his Assembly career was the defeating of a proposal, with an uncertain background, for a domed stadium in New York City. His long speech killed the bill, which reportedly had the backing of the leaders, so effectively that even a prominent sponsor voted against it.

In his present campaign, Wilson is stumping the state for the Wilson - Rockefeller-Lefkowitz-Regan ticket as well as strongly directing the drive to reelect a Republican legislature.

Paterson Has Solid Record

KINGSTON

Basil A. Paterson holds the unique distinction of being the first black man of his race to seek state-wide office in New York State as a major party designee.

Paterson is campaigning for the post of lietenant-governor, the running mate of former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, both on the Democratic-Liberal ticket.

Paterson, a state senator from Harlem, was first elected in 1965 and was reelected in 1966 and 1968. He is the ranking Democrat on the Joint Legislative Committee for education and three years ago was named to the Eagleton Institute of Politics as one of the two outstanding men in the state legislature.

The candidate is a 1942 graduate of DeWitt Clinton High School and received a bachelor of science degree from St. John's College in 1948. He earned his law degree from St. John's University in 1951.

In 1968 he received the distinguished service award of the Guardian's Association of the New York City Police Department and in August 1967 he represented New York State at the Florida Conference for the improvement of State Legislatures, having been selected to the post by a 12-man committee of legislators, professors and newsmen.

A member of the law firm of Paterson, Michael and Murray, Paterson, who gave the commencement address at the State University College at New Paltz last year, is a former president of the New York City Chapter of the NAACP.

In the state senate he has served on the Select Committee on Public Employe Relations and on the Senate Standing Committees on Judiciary, Banking, Labor and Industry, Affairs of the City of New York and Housing. He also serves on the Joint Legislative Committees on Conservation and Mental Retardation and Physical Handicap. In 1967 he was appointed by Gov. Rockefeller to the Temporary Commission to study problems of the deaf.

Paterson is well-known in the New Paltz area, having been a guest lecturer on Black Studies at the college campus for the past several years.

He appeared before he New Paltz Rotary Club on Oct. 16 as a luncheon speaker and gave his views on the campaign.

Ottinger Running On Record

KINGSTON

Congressman Richard L. Ottinger, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate says he is a man running "on his record, not away from it."

To make his point, he tells of writing bills to raise Social Security and to end unfair tax laws. He tells of writing the law "which may save the Hudson River," taking on the most powerful interests in New York State — Con Edison, Penn Central and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller — "when they tried to destory our land and air and water, and when they tried to charge more and more for less and less."

Ottinger, who is in a three-way race with incumbent Republican-Liberal Charles E. Goodell and Conservative-Independent James L. Buckley, says that he has been writing bills to provide better health care at a price people can afford, and to concentrate federal help in those areas hardest hit by crime and drug problems.

"These aren't promises," the Westchester resident and active member of B'nai B'rith states, "they are part of my record of accomplishment."

Ottinger's constituents are familar with his vigorous efforts on their behalf and his vocal and energetic stance as an opponent of the war in Southeast Asia when he called it "the wrong war, at the wrong time, and for the worng cause."

One of the first to urge a bombing halt, one of the few to vote against military appropriations and President Richard M. Nixon's "just peace" resolution, Ottinger recently conducted his own investigations that revealed details of Central Intelligence Agency war operations in Laos and the effect of U.S. military operations on the civilian population of Laos.

First elected to Congress in 1964, he has served three terms championing causes and concerns close to his constituents.

He has fought for tax reform since 1965 to close loopholes for the wealthy, to give tax relief for the elderly and single and to provide deductions for higher education expenses.

The 41-year-old father of four, who resides with his wife, the former Betty Ann Schneider in Pleasantville, has pressed for mass transit funds in Washington and Albany and has insisted on improved federal standards of service and safety through legislation.

Low Rent Housing Proposition on Ballot

A proposition calling for low rent housing subsidies will be on the Nov. 3 ballot. Voters will have the chance to vote "yes" or "no" on a proposition that would authorize the state to increase by $20 million a year subsidies to expand low rent housing and urban renewal. Proponents claim that the extensive program of low rent public housing construction already authorized has been completed without satisfying the demand for low rent housing units by low income families. Proponents urge approval to continue the program.

Those in opposition argue that "using proponents" estimate of 10,000 units that would be provided, the proposition suggests an annual subsidy by the state of $2,000 each and an additional $2,000 in tax exemption or other payment by the municipalities affected.

"Taxpayers therefore, would be called upon for a double-barreled addition to their taxes paid to the state and to their local property taxes.

"The $20 million to be provided annually to be provided by the state and the matching amount by local government would be in addition to $40 million already being paid annually by each.

"In essence, taxpayers would be called upon to pay other people's rent by providing a combined state and local subsidy of $4,000 a unit.

"It is obvious from these figures that the beneficiaries of additional construction of low rent housing would in many instances be occupying more desirable living quarters than those who would have to foot [illegible]"

The way I see it, our State Senator owes us $72,000.

Our State Senator is paid $18,000 a year.

So in the past four years $72,000 of our tax money has been paid out to him.

But in these four years what has he done to make all of our lives better?

Taxes have gone up and up. The pollution situation, to say the least, isn't getting any better. And the crime and drug problem is not only enough to get you angry, it's enough to get you frightened.

Now I don't think your State Senator can fix all these things 100 per cent, but he can do something. And I don't think our man has done anything.

In fact, an editorial in the New Paltz News, a paper that normally favors our State Senator's party, recently said:

> "...our State Senator has been our representative in name only. I keep getting the impression that the salary taxpayers pay Mr. Rolison is more like welfare."

My name is David Lenefsky and I'm running for State Senator from Ulster and Dutchess Counties because I'm angry about all these things. I think there are things your State Senator can do.

"Ulster and Dutchess, the forgotten counties. I'll make Albany remember them."

I want to fight up in Albany for higher taxes on big business. Right now the ones carrying the load are you and the small businessman. Why shouldn't the big guys pay their way, instead of us paying for them?

I want to fight for tougher air pollution standards. The ones we have now are so weak, they actually encourage pollution. As for water pollution, I want to work with our local officials to get money out of Albany and into our Counties so we can build sewage disposal plants.

And then I want to get even more money from Albany (we pay out enough in taxes to Albany, don't we?) so we can build up our police department and build a special narcotics police division.

But most of all, I want to work for you by working with you. So we can make all of our lives better.

Let's elect David Lenefsky State Senator

Paid for by the committee to elect David Lenefsky State Senator. Frank F. MacMartin, Treasurer. Telephone: OL. 7-8690

Bell Sees 'Crucial' Elections

KINGSTON — H. Clark Bell is running for reelection on the record, both his own and that of the New York State legislature where he has represented Ulster County as an assemblyman for the past two years.

Bell, the Republican-Conservative candidate, echoes the theme of many local and state Republicans that this election of 1970 will be "one of the most crucial" in the state's history because this legislature will reapportion the state, setting district lines and therefore representation for the next ten years. Bell is a member of the joint Reapportionment Committee of the legislature.

Bell labels himself "a working assemblyman" who has "fought to get Ulster County its fair share of state funds." Among the highlights include $925,000 for the second stage development of Wittenberg Park; snow making machines for Belleayre and $362,000 for planning funds for the Urban Development's project to build housing units in Kingston's Broadway East urban renewal area:

Terming Ulster County, "recreationally deficient" Bell noted his work in getting a special bill passed for recreational land in the town of Esopus and his work on the proposed Bristol Park marina near Saugerties.

Bell considers his "Woodstock Bill" one of his key pieces of legislation. The bill was sponsored by Bell after the rock festival in Bethel last summer where 400,000 young persons gathered and where lack of health, water and toilet facilities lead to serious health problems. Bell's bill, now law, requires that all health facilities be provided before such an event can take place.

Bell cited another example of his work in Albany, the proposed improvement and realignment of Routes 209 and 9W. "We haven't just talked about these serious traffic situations, we've got it up front and things are starting to get accomplished" he said.

Bell is also concerned about drug abuse among children in Ulster County and has discussed the possizility of a regional treatment center with officials from the Mid Hudson Valley Governmental Council. "One county can't do it alone," he says. "We have to help each other."

H. CLARK BELL

Bell is in favor of more state aid to schools but rules out the proposition for the state to pay the entire cost of operating county schools. Bell suggests state to pay the entire cost of operating county schools. Bell suggests that the state pay the full cost of all state mandated programs but that the local schools pay the capital funding (construction of new buildings) and maintain control over the administration of the schools.

Bell is a strong advocate of federal sharing the tax moneys, "We send about $24 billion to Washington and get back only about five and a half cents on the dollar," and expects it to be a key issue in next year's state legislature.

Bell also discussed the campaign issue of a "full time" state legislature. "Were in session from January to May and we had "mini-sessions" in June, September and December. Hardly a day goes by when I'm not working on some problem for a consittuent."

Bell thinks the answer is in more staff help for the state legislators. "We're a one man operation. We could use the help." The current salary for Assemblyman is $18,000 per year with $3,000 in expenses. Bell said he spends his $3,000 in expenses on his district office on Fair Street which he shares with State Senator Jy P. Rolison Jr. He is opposed to a salary increase for the legislators but would like to see an increase in the expense money "on a strict voucher system."

Bell burst upon the local political scene in the winter of 1966 when he declared his candidacy for the Constitutional Convention. He won a Republican primary and went on to election, polling some 66,000 votes in Dutchess and Ulster County.

In 1968, Bell was denied his party's nomination for assembly after Kenneth L. Wilson announced his retirement, but defeated Peter J. Savago, the nominee, in a Republican primary that June. He defeated the Democrat, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman in the November runoff.

Barthel: Common Sense Approach

GEORGE M. BARTHEL

KINGSTON — George Barthel knew he was in for a race when he accepted the Democratic-Liberal endorsement to run against H. Clark Bell this spring but he still maintains that the people will listen to his "common sense" approach and send him to Albany for a two-year term.

"I've worked hard," Barthel says. "I've gone to the people and they have responded. I'm encouraged by that response."

At times, Barthel says, he's been angered at the response of some of the people. "The overriding concern seems to be the inflationary times we live in," he told The Freeman. "Time and time again the question comes up. What are you going to do about rising taxes? What are you going to do about rising prices?"

Barthel's answer is that he will recommend, if elected, that the state legislature go on record for federal price and wage controls. He feels that, combined with "true tax reform" is the only way to halt "galloping inflation in a depression economy."

Barthel is also in favor of taking the school tax burden off property owners, pointing out that 19 per cent of Ulster County's population are senior citizens. He is, on the other hand, an advocate of local control of the schools.

On the subject of pollution, he says that he's "been attacking all over Ulster County" the Pure Waters Act of 1965 passed by a 3-1 majority of the voters. Barthel says that only about one-twelfth of the billion dollar bond issue passed five years ago has been spent. He notes that "70 per cent of industry is still polluting the waters." Barthel is in favor of passing laws against the use of phosphates which pollute the water.

Barthel also attacked state spending for the Albany Mall, noting that it was supposed to have cost $250 million when designed four years ago but that the cost for completion is now estimated at a billion and a half dollars.

On drugs, Barthel says "Rockefeller has admitted that the state's drug program has been a failure; 97.5 of those treated in the state program are back out on the streets." Barthel is in favor of channeling state money for the war on drugs back into the individual communities.

On the Route 209 alignment, he sayed, "I've been working with other interested citizens on that problem for the past 15 years. I'm very pleased to see that my opponent is coming out at this particular time in favor of the new Route 209 when in Rochester he said that mass transportaiton may be more important than highways. He didn't even attend the corridor hearing in Marbletown."

Barthel, a farmer with large holdings throughout the county, said that he is against "the preponderance of lawyers" in the legislature. (Bell is an attorney). "We need the diversification of thought and experience that a businessman-farmer can bring to the legislature. We need the common sense approach."

He served for six years as a councilman in the Town of Wawarsing and then six years as supervisor. Last year he was elected a legislator in the heavily Republican town. He is also a member of the board of directors of the Ellenville Chamber of Commerce and a member of Cook - Taylor American Legion Post. He is a past president of the Wawarsing Sportsman's Association.

Fogarty Seeks Full Term

Rensselaer County Judge Timothy J. Fogarty is the Democratic candidate for State Supreme Court Justice, Third Judicial District.

He is opposed in the Nov. 3 election by Kingston lawyer Republican-Conservative John L. Larkin.

Judge Fogarty, in his present post since last January when he was elected by a plurality of 9,000 votes, has twice been assigned to Supreme Court in Albany this year during two terms.

A police court judge in Troy for four years, he also served as the city's corporation counsel between 1957 and 1959.

A 1950 graduate of Albany Law School, the same alma mater as his opponent, Fogerty also graduated from Siena College and LaSalle Institute, the Christian Brothers Military Academy in Troy.

★ ★ ★ ★

Larkin Is GOP Pick

John L. Larkin, Republican-Conservative candidate for U.S. Supreme Court is building his candidacy on the basis of Ulster County's need for another resident Supreme Court Justice. He is being opposed in his bid by Troy Democrat Timothy J. Fogarty.

A former assistant district attorney in Ulster County, Larkin presently serves as counsel for the New York State Automobile Dealers Association, a 1,700 member new car dealer association. He is also serving as counsel for the Rondout National Bank, a post he has held since 1967.

A native of Kingston, he was educated in Kingston Schools and graduated from Holy Cross College in 1943. He served in the U.S. Navy as a lieutenant, was injured in the Pacific and spent two years in naval hospitals before being discharged in 1947. He has been a lieutenant in the U.S. Naval Reserve until recently and is a member of the Disabled American Veterans.

HIS RECORD — JOE SACCOMAN FOR

Fairness to All People

WILL FIGHT AGAINST

He will report to our people where their surplus money is invested and what it is earning. Fight for uniform tax rate in all towns by having fair appraisals and assesments. He is EXPERIENCED — DEDICATED and DEPENDABLE. The Home Owners and Small Business Man who have not been fairly taxed will appreciate Joe Saccoman.

ELECT

JOE SACCOMAN — AS YOUR NEXT

COUNTY TREASURER

For Treasurer's Post

Saccoman, DuBois in Race

KINGSTON — This year's race for county treasurer features the incumbent Fred H. DuBois of New Paltz seeking his fifth term against the challenger Joseph Saccoman of Kingston in his first run for this office.

The treasurer is the county's chief fiscal officer and is responsible for clearing all recipts and disbursements. The term is three years, at a current salary of $13,000 per year.

DuBois, the Republican-Conservative, was first elected treasurer in 1958, beating the then treasurer, Joseph Koenig by some four thousand votes. Koenig, father of Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig, had been appointed to the treasurer's job by former Governor Averill Harriman. DuBois' plurality over Arnold Banker of Shandaken was 13,555 three years ago.

Saccoman, a real estate and insurance broker who lives and operates his business at 116 Eimendorf Street, has the Democratic-Liberal endorsement. Saccoman served three terms on the old Board of Supervisors from the old Tenth Ward of the city from 1942 to 1945.

During the Raymond W. Garraghan Administration he was apponted a housing codes inspector but left that position to futher pursue his insurance-real estate business.

DuBois was well known in the New Paltz area before his election as county treausrer in 1958. He was a town councilman and later town supervisor, a trustee of the New Paltz Savings Bank, a 4-H leader, member of the New Paltz Reformed Church and also served on the New Paltz School Baord.

In addition, he is the past president of the Ulster County Extension Service, and presently serves on the board of directors of the Agricultural Department of Extension service in addition to being a member of the Advisory Council of Animal Husbandry Department of Cornell University.

Saccoman has been active in community affairs for many years most prominently with the Knights of Columbus, Council 275. In 1942 he was named a condemnation commissioner by the late Supreme Court Justice, Harry E. Schirick when the Mink Hollow Stream was diverted into Cooper Lake.

Saccoman, who is married to the former Mary Brophy, is the father of the Rev. Robert E. Saccoman of St. Peter's Church in Rosendale.

The campaign has been relatively low-key with DuBois standing on his record and Saccoman pointing to his own public record of attacking favoritism and helping "the little guy". Saccoman has pointed out on several occasions that it was by his action that the county board of supervisors authorized the payment of taxes in two installments and that it was by his insistance that improvements were made to the old age home in New Paltz.

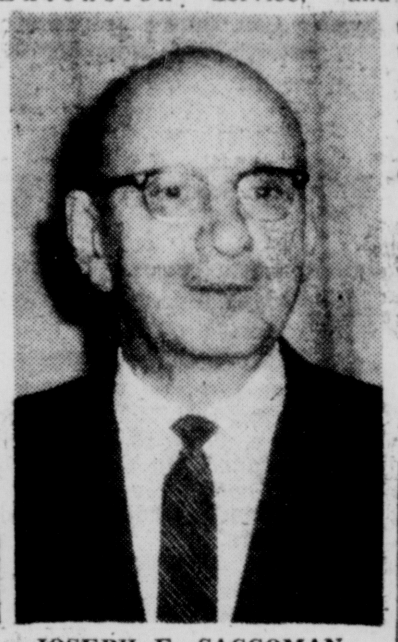

Saccoman has also called for equitable assessments throughout the county, stating that some assessors are not as qualified as others and that their should be uniform standards.

DuBois points out that under his direction the county has invested its excess cash in interest bearing accounts for the past dozen years. The interest, so far this year, according to the treasurer, added up to almost $200,000.

Both men are in favor of a county tax map and for the highest standards possible in assessing.

Betros Campaigns For Second Term

Emeel S. Betros, incumbent Assemblyman from the 98th District, Dutchess County, has both Republican and Conservative backing in his bid for a second two-year term in Albany.

Betros attended Poughkeepsie public schools and received his law degree from St. John's in New York. He and his wife Jeanne and four school-aged children live at 67 Grand Avenue, Poughkeepsie.

WARYAS SEEKS TO REGAIN SEAT FROM BETROS

He has been City Court Clerk, Acting City Judge and a former assistant to the attorney general's office investigating monopolies and rackets.

In his Assembly term, he has been closely affiliated with the narcotics problems, and told The Freeman he is "hopeful of further positive steps" in this direction.

He favors increased penalties to pushers of hard narcotics and believes the problem has reached "epidemic proportions." Betros is also opposed to legalization of marijuana, and admits that there is "quite a bit around."

He sees his immediate future in the Assembly connected to vehicle transportation, because he is chairman of a subcommittee on vehicle transportation pollution.

Betros is also a subcomittee chairman on narcotics education, and said he believed that the emphasis should be on "prevention."

In the recent past, Betros said he carried the bill which created the "Super Cop" in relation to a state crime task force; and he carried the "newspaper reporter confidence bill," which guarantees the newsman's right to protect his sources of information.

And he recalls support of "several rehabilitation narcotics bills" recently.

Lefkowitz Off Again

KINGSTON — Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz seems to be the "automatic man" on the Republican ticket, automatic for nomination year, after election year, and 'automatic' for election usually at the head of the ticket.

★ ★

ADAM WALINSKY

Walinsky Attacks Opponent

A five-topic format has characterized the campaign of Democrat Adam Walinsky who seeks to unseat the incumbent state attorney general Republican-Liberal Louis J. Lefkowitz.

The former speechwriter and legislative assistant to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, has placed emphaiss on organized crime and narcotics traffic, pollution of the environment and the workplace, consumer protectioin and rights of the individual against large organization and corporations. Also discrimination, civil rights and civil liberties and the role of the attorney general in law enforcement and as a political leader.

Specifically, Walinsky's campaign, in which he unsuccessfully sought to debate his opponent, has been hard hitting in its demands such as: an investigation into the state income tax evasion charge against Republican incumbent Congressman Martin McKneally (27th District), a demand that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller fire Industrial Commissioner Martin P. Catherwood for allegedly not enforcing the provisions of the New York Labor Law and a charge that all narcotics rehabilitation programs now in effect are doomed to failure. Walinsky feels this is because of what he calls "the state's total failure to enforce its narcotics traffic."

Educated in New York City and Washington D. C. the 33-year-old lawyer is a graduate of Cornell University and Yale Law School. He served with the United States Marine Corps Reserve between 1958-63 and was on active duty in 1958.

A law clerk to Judge Carroll C. Hincks, U.S. Court of Appeals, he later became an attorney with the United States Department of Justice and drafted the administration bill repealing the national origins quota system.

He charges his opponent with 14 years of total neglect of "this spreading epidemic.

"The average weekly death rate in Vietnam of New York residents is four," Walinsky explained. "The average weekly death rate from heroin in New York is 18. If Vietnam is an insane slaughterhouse, what do you call New York?"

Lefkowitz at 66 is now rounding out his third full three-year term as attorney general. He was appointed attorney general in 1957 to replace Jacob Javits who had been elected to the United States Senate the previous year and won election in his own right in 1958, 1962 and 1966 by increasingly heavier margins.

The candidate has been in politics most of his life since graduation from Fordham Law School in 1925. He served in the State Assembly from 1928 to 1930. Twice he served briefly as a New York City judge and has been a deputy tax commissioner an a counsel to legislative committees. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1944, 1948, 1960 and 1964. He was general chairman for the 1958 through 1963 United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York and trustee in '64-65 and vice chairman in 1966.

The candidate appeared in Kingston on Feb. 19 of this year and addressed the Kiwanis Club at the Governer Clinton Hotel on consumer fraud, a consistant theme throughout his campaign.

Lefkowitz's campaign also spilled over into the area of pollution when he applied for a court order to stop the International Paper Company from polluting Lake Champlain.

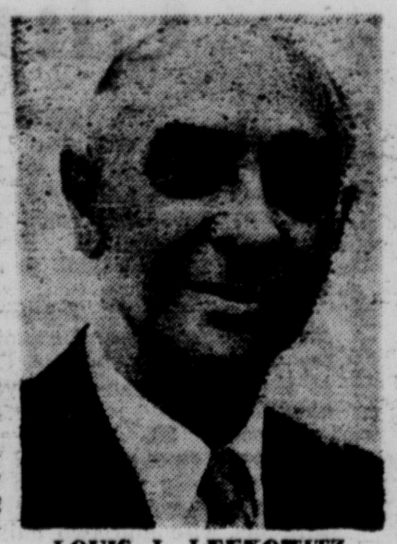

In August he brought his fight against car manufacturers who refused to back their warranties to Poughkeepsie where he said he was considering recommending legislation which would force dealers and manufacturers to live up to the warranties.

Lefkowitz cited a Maryland law which required that dealers put up a $100,000 bond but added that it should be higher in New York State.

In September, he was back in Kingston at a press conference where he announced that the state's new "super cop" agencies to combat organized crime would have offices in Rochester, Binghamton, Albany and Westchester.

On the subject of drugs, Lefkowitz said at the time, "I was one of the first to advocate that the federal government cut off the source of drugs coming in from Iran, Turkey and France but we have not succeeded in cutting it out." He termed the drug problem "an epidemic that we are not going to lick by speeches."

The candidate lists his address at 575 Park Avenue, New York City. He is seeking another four-year term as attorney general.

Chipp, Johnson Square Off

KINGSTON

This year's race for Ulster County coroner pits a Kingston accident investigator in his first political campaign against a Kerhonkson funeral director rounding out his 21st year in office this year.

Charles "Mike" Johnson is the Democrat-Liberal candidate for the coroner. Arthur Chipp is the Republican-Conservative candidate.

Johnson, 30, a native of Houston, Texas, graduated from the University of Houston with a degree in economics. He lives with his wife and two children at 32 Main Street Kingston.

Chipp, 62, a native of Kingston, graduated from its schools and the State University College at New Paltz. He taught grade school for five years in the Kerhonkson area before graduating from the Renard Training School for Embalmers and entering the funeral direction field. He is president of the H.B. Humiston Funeral Home Inc. in Kerhonkson.

Chipp has a long record of civic activity in Ulster County, most recently serving on the board of directors of the Ulster County Blood Bank. He also serves on the Board of Ellenville Community Hospital as its secretary.

ARTHUR CHIPP

Johnson serves on the board of directors of the Ulster County branch of the American Red Cross, the Community Chest, the Kingston Jaycees and is a member of the Kingston Democratic Men's Club and Temple Emanuel. His wife, Maralyn is the vice president of the B'nai B'rith chapter of Temple Emanuel.

Chipp is running on his record: "I feel qualified in doing what I've been doing." He was first elected Ulster County coroner in 1943, served two, three-year terms, stepped down for Dr. Charles Rosenstock for two terms and has been returned to office ever since 1956.

Chipp said he works well with a unique system of qualified investigators, (the sheriff's office, state police and BCI) and outstanding pathologists at the Kingston Laboratory.

He does feel, however, the county's three coroners should be paid more than the $1,300 per year each and mileage, the latter benefit only recently granted by the county legislature.

He has averaged about 70 calls a year for the past five years.

CHARLES M. JOHNSON

Chipp said that he feels that any mortician would be qualified to serve as an Ulster County coroner but adds emphatically that there has never been any conflict of interest between his office of coroner and his profession as an undertaker. "In no instance have I ever projected myself as a funeral director when discussing a (coroner's) case with a breaved family."

Johnson feels that one of the most important duties of a coroner is the keeping of records and considers himself well qualified in the aspect because of his profession as an accident investigator.

Johnson would make the coroner's office an investigative office by reorganizing it better as to its "original purpose" as an investigative and administrative office.

He says he will bring his experience, know-how and training to the office of coroner to create an office that will impartially evaluate the facts surrounding deaths.

Waryas — Wants to Go Back

Victor C. Waryas is attempting to regain the 98th Assembly District seat he left two years ago.

The Democratic candidate has strong ties with Poughkeepsie. He was born there, educated there, and operates an independent insurance and package store there.

Waryas was elected Poughkeepsie mayor in 1959 and was selected by the U.S. Department of State to visit Poland in 1963 in the People to People program.

While a member of the State Assembly, representing Dutchess County, he was involved on committees on agriculture, cities, constitution, conservation, rules and civil service, rules and procedures revisions, and the speaker's advisory committee. And he was a member of the joint legislative committee on housing and urban development and on town law.

And Waryas was appointed special legislative coordinator to the State Assembly Minority Leader Stanley Steingut.

A Navy veteran of World War II, Waryas is involved in numerous Polish and Roman Catholic organizations in the Poughkeepsie area, as well as the American Legion, American Red Cross, Chamber of Commerce, and Democratic Party.

He has two grown children and resides with his wife Elynore at 18 Mildred Avenue, Poughkeepsie.

In this campaign, Waryas has stressed environmental pollution control as his major topic. He said in September that "no issue, with the exception of war and peace, is more important to the people of New York State than the pollution of our environment."

And he added in the same statement, "And I do not agree with those who say the cost is too great. No one can put a debt limit on survival."

In response to this threat he has pledged, in part, "When I return to Albany . . . I shall introduce a bill in the Legislature which shall forever bar in New York State the sale of gasoline containing lead additives."
